THE PEACE QUESTION.

Latest Negotiations Come to Naught—Prussian Demands for Territory the Cause—Gammetta Trying to Make Peace Through the Restored Regency—Russia's Position—Thiers' Efforts for an Armistice.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Times has a special dispatch from Berlin, stating that the latest negotiations for peace have come to naught owing to the persistence of Prussia in her demands for the cession of French territory. The Times, in an article advising the British Government to make no further efforts to put a stop to the war now, says if England persists in negotiating for peace, she must be ready to stake something on it.

EUGENIE AND THE REGENCY.

The Standard says negotiations are actively going on between Versailles and the Empress EUGENIE, at Chiselhurst, with a view to the return of the Empress to France to resume the Regency and negotiate a peace. The departure of the Empress, if it did not occur last night, may be expected at any moment.

THE GERMAN ATTITUDE.

The Berlin Gazette, reviewing the attempts at conciliation, says the Government is led to consider them by its desire to avoid the further loss of valuable lives in the contest.

BAZAINE'S NEGOTIATIONS.

The negotiations for the surrender of Metz continue, but make slow progress. BAZAINE ignores the French Provisional Government in his communications.

THE ARMISTICE.

M. THIERS has accepted the mission to negotiate an armistice only, but still remains at Tours, awaiting a safe conduct to Paris, to consult first with the Government there.

THE CZAR.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The CZAR has sent the order of ST. GEORGE to the Grand Duke of MECKLENBURG-SCHWERIN with an autograph letter expressing earnest aspirations for peace.

SIEGE OF PARIS.

Advices by Way of Tours Direct—Condition of the Besiegers—Two Stories of the Sortie of Friday Last.

TOURS, Oct. 25—Direct.—As the wind has been unfavorable for several days past no balloons have left Paris. From a private but reliable source we hear there are vast numbers of sick in the camps of the besiegers. On many occasions the discontent of the men has been loudly expressed, and their commanding officers have been obliged to go often among the troops to keep up their morale. Sorties made nightly by small parties of Parisians and constant firing at night from the forts, severely harass the Prussians. Up to the present time, the latter have not succeeded in erecting batteries of siege guns near enough to commence an effective bombardment of the city. The gentleman who gives the above information is a resident of Versailles, and has been there since the enemy occupied the town, until a day or two ago, when he managed to make his escape. He says that even in the vicinity of Versailles the Prussians are constantly annoyed by the Franco-Tireurs, who keep up an active guerrilla warfare, firing from ambuscades and daily killing numbers of the enemy.

THE SORTIE OF OCT. 21.

Late advices from Paris show that the sortie made on the 21st was exceedingly successful. Many Prussians were killed and taken prisoners. The journals, commenting on the Prussian report of this affair, call attention to its false statements, especially in representing the German loss as insignificant, and in claiming the capture of a number of prisoners, when the enemy took none.

THE GERMAN SIDE OF THE STORY.

STUTTGART, Oct. 24.—Gen. SUCKOW telegraphed to the Government here on Sunday that the French made a sortie across the Marne at Joinville on Friday last against the Wurtemburg outposts. Three French battalions, with artillery and mitrailleuses engaged our forces from that point (Joinville) to Champigny. They were bravely repulsed by the Second rifle battalion and part of the Seventh Regiment. The Wurtembergers lost two killed and three wounded.

OTHER MILITARY OPERATIONS.

Surrender of Schlestadt—Siege of Verdun—An Effective Sortie—Movements in the East and Central France.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The town of Schlestadt capitulated yesterday to the besieging forces after a severe bombardment. The surrender includes 2,400 prisoners and 120 cannon. [Schlestadt lies about twenty miles south of Strasbourg, in the Department of Bas-Rhin, on the railroad leading to the south of France, through Mulhouse and Besançon. It was an important fortified place, and its capture by the Germans adds strength to their hold upon the French conquered territory. Schlestadt is only about nine miles from the Rhine, and the river Ill runs through it.]

VERDUN.

NEUFCHATEAU, Oct. 24.—On Friday night the Prussians attempted to bombard Verdun, but their plans were discomcerted by a gallant and successful sortie of the garrison. Our troops charged with the bayonet, and killed numbers of the enemy. Two bodies of the besiegers, mistaking each other in the night for enemies, fought for hours, and suffered heavy losses.

BESANCON, Oct. 23.—The Bote (newspaper) of this city says 2,000 men, with two pieces of artillery, have marched from Vitonville for Verdun, to relieve the troops blockaded there.

THE EAST.

BESANCON, Oct. 24.—The invaders are retreating from Chatillon-le-Duc, taking with them seventeen wagon-loads of wounded. They left a large number of dead on the field, among them a Colonel of Baden cavalry.

ABOUT CHARTRES.

TOURS, Oct. 25.—The following dispatches have been received here:

LALOUPE, Oct. 24.—A large force of Prussians was at Courville today, and their scouts appeared at Pontgouin, but in the evening they returned to Chartres, after blowing up the bridge at Landelles. Fifteen members of the National Guard were shot by the enemy at Nogent.

SEDAN AND VERDUN.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—A detachment of Germans, 2,000 strong, reached Le Mans on Monday. Great uneasiness is felt by the Prussian garrison of Sedan. The village of Mézières les Metz has been compelled to furnish 600 horses for the transportation of seized material to Montmedy and Verdun.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Importation to Switzerland—Aid for Americans in Paris—Napoleon's Private Fortune—The German Cabinet at Versailles—The French Administration.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The Government at Tours permits the exportation of all articles heretofore placed on the prohibited list, except cereals, to Switzerland.... Bishop MCILVAINE, of Ohio, in a letter to the Times, solicits aid for the Americans in Paris, to be sent through Sir CURTIS LAMPSON, who remains in that city....The BARINGS repudiate the investment of any funds on account of the Emperor of the French.

DARMSTADT, Oct. 24.—Baron DALWIGK has gone with Herr HOFFMAN to Versailles to attend the Council of Ministers.

FRENCH TRAITORS SHOT.

TOURS, Oct. 24—Evening, via LONDON, Oct. 25.—M. ERIANE, formerly Mayor of the Ninth Arrondissement of Paris, has been appointed Director-General of Safety of France. The Departmental Committees have been authorized to remove all property or animals likely to be useful to the enemy. The Minister of War has been empowered to suspend traffic over any railroad, for the same reason. The Departments of the Lower Seine and Eure are declared in a state of siege. There have been many cases of insubordination and treachery, in which the guilty parties have been punished with death.

CITY WAR NEWS.

The German Fair.

The German Ladies' Fair at the Thirty-seventh Regiment Armory, will henceforth be open from 10 o'clock A. M. until 10 o'clock in the evening. Cash contributions have been received by the Treasurer, among others, from the following gentlemen: Robert C. Hutchins, $50; George H. Purser, $25; Thomas H. Fields, $50; Fernando Wood, $25; Benjamin Wood, $25; Isaac Bell, $25; A. S. Webb, $25; Wm. Hatchman, $50; R. P. Howe, $50; Richard L. Larremore, $15; Dr. Occearin, $10; Fred. W. Lowe, $25; S. B. Garvin, $10; James Brooks, $10; John S. Bradley, $100; A. J. Vanderpoel, $25; E. Cadle Derry, $100; Charles G. Cornell, $25; A. Frear, $10; Richard O'Gorman, $100; James Brooks, $100; Mrs. H. L. Meyer, $100; Johnson, Hirsch & Co., $100; H. Nieto, $100.

The Horrors of War—Appeal to American Women.

Hon. H. S. SANFORD, formerly United States Minister at Brussels, has written a letter to Rev. Dr. H. W. BELLOWS, President of the American Branch of the International Relief Society, in which he says that the misery and desolation in those parts of France ravaged by the armies is immense, and increasing daily. Winter is approaching, and thousands must perish unless help come speedily. It is not alone food and raiment that is needed, but seed for the land, which has been stripped of everything—horses, cattle, implements of husbandry. We (Americans) have abundant crops. A generous people, why should we not take the chief place in ministering to this wide-spread misery? We could send from our abundance cargoes of provisions to cheer the victims of war, and make the name of America blessed for the good it did in this time of desolation.

BASE-BALL.

A Noteworthy Contest in Brooklyn—Signal Defeat of the Champion Mutuals by the Celebrated Red Stockings.

The stock of the Mutual Club of this City, which has of late been quoted at quite a high figure in the base-ball market, suddenly fell below par yesterday afternoon, the cause of the decline being their signal defeat by the noted Red Stocking nine of Cincinnati, a party of players who, though unable apparently to run through the alphabet phonetically this season, find no difficulty in coming East here and polishing off our "crack nines;" the latest victim of the Cincinnatians being our so-called "champion nine," a title one would naturally suppose to be a little questionable under the circumstances of their having sustained no less than three defeats this season. Yesterday morning quite a fine day, the attendance of spectators on the Union grounds was unusually large, especially in view of the fact of the admission fee being fifty cents, fully 3,000 people being gathered within the inclosure. But our people, as a rule, know a good ball game when they see it, and the prospect of a bona fide trial of skill, and they have always been assured of in all matches where the Red Stockings have played, for unlike the majority of professional club nines, they go into a match to win honorable trophies for the credit of their club and their city, and not for the sake of the gate-money receipts.

The two nines entered upon the game pretty evenly matched as far as having their strongest teams in the field, for both were short-handed, the Reds not having ALLISON, their catcher, and the Mutuals missing the services of SWARDZEL, from same cause, and verably fine a close contest, neither side scoring in the first inning; but in the next three innings the Reds added a total of 6 runs to their score, while the Mutuals retired each inning for nothing. In the next four innings the Reds were only allowed to add a single to their score, this was one more than the Mutuals obtained, and in the ninth inning of the Mutuals two men were put out before the New-Yorkers had scored a solitary run in the game. By an over-pitched ball, however, HATFIELD, who had managed to get round to his third, came in, and thereby saved the Mutuals from being blanked for the same number as they had treated the Chicago nine, the game ending with the score of 7 to 1 in favor of the Reds. This is the fifth game the Red Stockings have defeated the Mutuals in succession, three of the games being won by scores of 4 to 2, 16 to 3 and 7 to 1—form at least. The Chicago White Stockings were beaten by the Mutuals two games out of the three they have played together, viz.: by scores of 12 to 4 and 9 to 6. We append the score of yesterday's game, which was a fine display of the beauties of fielding by the Red Stocking nine, George Wright's splendid fielding being the feature.

The Race of the Sappho and Dauntless—The Former Wins.

The Sappho and Dauntless race of twenty-five miles to windward and return was sailed yesterday morning, outside Sandy Hook Light-ship, and won by the former, with nearly twenty-five minutes to spare. The Bath Lass towed the fishing-smack Mosquito to the northward and eastward about ten miles from the light-ship, and then anchored her as a stake-boat. The Sappho and Dauntless sailed up after them, and as soon as the Mosquito let go her anchor, prepared for the start. The following is the time of the start:

	Time.	R.	M.	S.
Dauntless	7 G. Bennett, jr.	58	0	47
Sappho	William Douglass	62	1	25

The Sappho gained steadily from the commencement, and won the race by 23 minutes 25 seconds. The following is the time:

	Stake-boat. H.	M.	S.	Home. H.	M.	S.	Race. H.	M.	S.
Sappho	11	26	41	3	25	1	2	58	20
Dauntless	11	26	39	3	26	16	3	1	45

This was one of the fastest races ever sailed, considering that the yachts sailed about seventy miles. After passing the stake-boat both yachts here down for Staten Island, where they anchored last night.

The return match by consultation, between the Down-town and Nineteenth Ward Chess Clubs, will take place on Friday evening next, at the rooms of the Down-town Chess Club, Nos. 12 and 14 Division-street. Both Clubs will be ably represented by their strongest champions, and an excellent display of chess skill may be expected.

LATEST WAR NEWS.

Provincial Journals Suspicious of England—The French Loan—The Recent Bombs Explained by the German-Garibaldi's Movements.

TOURS, Oct. 25.—The journals received from the provinces continue to express a lack of confidence, inspired by the action of England. All of them see Prussian influence in it, as it is well understood that military operations are going on satisfactorily. The same journals demand that the Government repeat the offer of mediation, and continue the war to the death. As yet the expected Russian safe conduct for M. THIERS has not arrived; so nothing more is to be done in that direction as far as regards mediation.

THE LOAN.

It is reported here that a delegate of the Government has concluded, in London, a loan of 250,000,000 francs, the shares to be issued by France at 85, bearing six per cent. interest, and payable in thirty-four years at par. Subscriptions will be opened in France and England.

BOURGES.

As the Prussians have menaced an attack on Bourges, all the foundries, cannon and material are to be removed from that city. According to orders issued by M. GAMBETTA, companies of telegraph operators are appointed to all the armies, with orders to keep the Government perfectly instructed of all movements. The men are all to be armed.

PRUSSIAN BARBARITY.

M. OSIMAL, Conservator of Gers, gives terrible details of the treatment of women at St. Clermont by the Prussians. As the populations now show resistance, the Prussians treat them brutally.

THE REPUBLIC NOT RECOGNIZED—SPAIN.

The Roman journals relate that the Prussians at Leon ordered the judicial authorities of that town to render justice in the name of NAPOLEON, as Prussia did not recognize the Republic. The French authorities refused, and temporarily ceased the exercise of their functions. Two spies have been brought to Tours. One of them is said to be a nephew of BISMARCK. They were officers in disguise.

GARIBALDI.

It is reported that GARIBALDI has defeated the Prussians, capturing two mitrailleuses and 150 horses. It is assured that GARIBALDI has made an effective disposal of the large force protecting Lyons from the advance of the Prussians. His command is daily increasing in importance.

AMERICAN AMBULANCES.

A priest writing from Paris, on the 19th October, describes his going out to aid the French wounded. He says he saw the operations of the American ambulance train. He cannot sufficiently praise the activity, charity and spirit of concord of the American surgeons.

GENERAL TELEGRAMS.

MARINE DISASTERS.

The Latest Regarding the Wreck of the Cambria—Trace of Another Survivor—A Second Hurricane at Key West—Six Vessels Wrecked in the Harbor—Other Casualties.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Fragments of the steamer Cambria have washed ashore on the Irish coast, near Antrim and Donegal Counties.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Oct. 25.—Information is made public here, by a reliable party, that J. E. HONSON, of Coffin's Station, Ind., has received a cable telegram from his brother, ALBERT HONSON, who was a passenger by the steamer Cambria, announcing his safe arrival at Glasgow. From this it would appear that there is at least one survivor who has not made known to the agents of the steam-ship line, or the English newspapers, the fact of his safety, and leads to the hope that still others are safe.

PUNTA RORA, Fla., Oct. 25.—Another hurricane has visited Key West; six vessels were wrecked in the harbor.....The steamer which is to repair the broken cable started last Friday, but had to put back on account of the rough weather. The steamer has started again from Key West, and is expected to arrive here to-night. The cable is expected to be easily recovered, and to be in working order shortly after the arrival of the steamer. The wind is strong from the north-east.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 25.—The brig Cordova, from Belfast, R. I., for Havana, has arrived here with loss of everything except bowsprit and mainmast. Her cargo is not injured. She was overtaken by a hurricane, in latitude 31° 40', longitude 76° 30', barometer 28.00.

PORT BURWELL, Canada, Oct. 26.—The steamer Missouri, with a cargo of groceries and general goods for Detroit, drawing eleven feet water, struck a bar outside the harbor, and was driven ashore by the force of the gale, this morning, and scuttled. She is not much damaged, but the cargo is nearly a total loss.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Opening of the Convention at Cincinnati—Small Representation—Letters Read—Mr. Greeley Waves New-York for the Capital.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 25.—The Convention to consider the propriety of removing the National Capital, assembled at 12½ o'clock today at Pike's Hall, and was called to order by Col. STEWART, of Mobile. J. G. ALLEN, of Illinois, was appointed temporary Chairman, and E. J. CESERA, of Ohio, Secretary. Fifty-three delegates were present. Pending the motion to appoint Committees on Credentials, permanent organization, &c., the Convention adjourned till 3 P. M., to give time for the arrival of other delegates.

EVENING SESSION.

At the session of the National Capital Convention, this afternoon, a Committee on Permanent Organization was appointed. The following letter was read from HORACE GREELEY:

NEW-YORK, Thursday, Oct. 20, 1870.

DEAR SIR: I have your letter of the 18th, inviting me to attend the Capital Convention at Cincinnati on the 26th, and greatly regret that I should be over-State again, pending our approaching election, only find time to say that the subject of your deliberations is of the very greatest consequence to every portion of our country, and deserves prompt, as well as earnest, consideration. Washington seems an unfavorable locality for our nominal metropolis, and one to be rendered less and less acceptable by the marvelous growth of Central and West. I would fix a great city, I should prefer our greatest city, supported by a perfectly independent Press, whereby all the acts and leanings of the Government would be criticised with absolute freedom from deference to the hope of Federal patronage, or the fear of its withdrawal. It should be surrounded by a dense, intelligent and spirited population, readily rallied by myriads to the defence of the national archives and treasures. It should be a focus of art and literature and refinement, thus inviting the presence, and commanding the admiration of the choice spirits of the entire civilized world. Under New-York to be pre-eminently that City, I am quite sure that Washington is not. Let the subject be thoroughly and generally canvassed, and I feel confident that a change will be approved and demanded. Yours, &c.,

(Signed.) HORACE GREELEY.

Another letter was received from Col. JOHN W. FORNEY, opposed to removal. After the reading was well under way, objection was made to the reading on account of its length. A motion to proceed was carried, and a motion to lay on the table lost. Pending the discussion as to the disposition to be made of the paper, the Convention adjourned.

Social Science—The General Meeting in Philadelphia—Papers on Various Subjects.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—The ninth general meeting of the American Social Science Association is held this year in this city. It opened today in the Hall of the University of Pennsylvania. The President of the Association called the meeting to order, and in the absence of Hon. WILLIAM STRONG, Chairman of the Philadelphia branch, made a short address. Mr. LORIN BLODGETT, of Philadelphia, Papers were read by Mr. LORIN BLODGETT, of Philadelphia, on "The Waste of Existing Social Systems;" by ECKLEY B. COXE, of Orifton, Penn., on "Minting Legislation;" by E. H. DERBY, of Boston, on "Free Trade with Canada," arguing that the admission of the British Provinces into the Union would benefit both, and extend their markets, and lower the scale of living and production; by THOMAS HARE, of London, on "Minority Representation," and, by others on various topics.

Inaugural Meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club—Five Races Yesterday at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 25.—The inaugural meeting of the races of the Maryland Jockey Club, over the Pimlico Course, was held today. SANFORD; forfeit by Narragansett, and Stonage walked over the course. The third race, the Dinner Party Stakes, dash two miles, for three-year old colts and fillies, $1,000 entrance, $500 forfeit, had thirty entries—Prudence came first, Kelpie second, Foster third, Susan Ann fourth, Lida Greene fifth, Mary Ann sixth, My Maryland seventh. Time—3:47¼. In the great race, the Dinner Party Stakes, for $12,500, Foster was the favorite, and pools sold last night: Foster $100, Prudence $100, Kelpie $60, Lida Greene $25, Princess $45, and Susan Ann, $25. My Maryland was not entered until this morning on the course. This morning Foster sold at $40; Prudence, $15. Foster, it is said, was backed by New-York men. The track was in the best condition, and the day bright. Over 10,000 persons were on the ground, one-fourth of whom included the most fashionable ladies of Baltimore. It was at a dinner-party, given by Mr. SANFORD, at the Concert of Ease, at Union Hotel, Saratoga, that a Maryland Jockey Club was proposed, and he has been the winner of the most important races today.

Yellow Fever in Mobile—An Appeal for Aid.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 25.—There were six deaths from yellow fever here, for the twenty-four hours ending at 6 o'clock P. M., yesterday. The lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of this city appeal to sister lodges throughout the country for assistance in the present epidemic, as their own resources are exhausted. Remittances may be made to S. W. CAYCE, G. S.

LET US HAVE PEACE.

Women's Direct Intervention in the Pacification of the World—Lecture by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe.

A large and interesting audience, in which much of the wealth, culture, and refinement of New York were blended, assembled last evening at Association Hall, corner Twenty-fourth-street and Fourth-avenue, to encourage by their presence the noble efforts which the heroic women of our age are determined to put forth in order that universal peace may be established in the world. The meeting was called to order by Mr. A. M. POWELL, and Mrs. WM. CULLEN BRYANT was chosen President, and Mrs. MARY F. DAVIS, Orange County, N. J., Secretary.

Mr. BRYANT, in introducing the fair lecturer, stated that the object of the meeting was to inaugurate a movement to establish a World's Peace Congress for women, and pointed out their peculiar adaptation for such a glorious purpose. He related the poetical legend of the Sabine women, so famous in Roman story, and said that a still more illustrious fame would follow the heroic women of our age in standing on the threshold and staying the effusion of rivers of blood.

Mr. HOWE was warmly received, and delivered a deeply interesting lecture, arguing that although sometimes war may be necessary as in preserving the integrity of a country or in the cause of human liberty, that it was generally undertaken to gratify the ambition of kings. He denounced in strong language the military occupation of France by the German army, and the forcible annexation of territory without the consent of the people, and called on the women of America and Europe to protest against the continuance of the war.

At the conclusion of her address the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The hope of "peace on earth," which this progress of society and public sentiment had encouraged quickly to expect, seemed to have been swept away by the bloodiest and most obstinate War among both Continents in this; and,

Whereas, Neither the Gospel of Christ, which is a gospel of Peace, Society, nor the Church, assembled for promoting peace, seem to have advanced the promotion of conciliation, and the substitution of national differences to arbitration; therefore,

Resolved, That we hereby renew our effort to arouse the women of the world to their duties as peace-makers, and believe it to be one of their inalienable rights to calm the violent passions of society—while it seems on earth—would it be their best warrant of all they are now seeking in the great movement for social, political, and industrial equality.

Resolved, That a new element of strength is needed in the effort to bring the world to reason and subjugate the violent spirit of aggression, which, coming down from the Spring war and Agincourt, and that this is the organized natural horror at blood which shudders in the bosom of woman, and which, concentrated into a social sentiment, would, if once fairly established, make men in all civilized nations might supply what is lacking in the elements and principles of men of good will, who fail to convert the word to peace.

Resolved, That the Women's International Congress for Peace is a sublime and sacred idea, worthy of the aspirations of mothers and daughters, who have felt the sword entering their own hearts and wrecking the sanctuary of all their hopes in the person of those who said, "Put away thy sword."

Resolved, That, in the endeavor to inaugurate a combined movement for peace throughout the world, we earnestly invite the sympathy and co-operation of the working men and women of all nations. The cause of peace is preeminently their cause, since their enmity to war is impossible while standing armies devour their sons, and war taxes impoverish and perpetuate their thralldom. Upon them, the collapse of war fall heaviest, and their united cry for peace, on earth will not be heard in vain.

Resolved, That Mrs. JULIA WARD HOWE, together with the President and the Secretary of this meeting, be a committee whose duty it shall be to obtain signatures to a call for a general meeting, to be held at a time and place hereafter to be determined, in furtherance of the proposed Congress for the Promotion of Universal Peace.

Addresses were also delivered by Hon. GEO. W. JULIEN, of Rhode Island, Rev. CHAS. G. AMES, of California, and Mrs. DAVIS, after which the meeting adjourned.

The Rockaways of Democratic Rufians.

An incident occurred yesterday morning in the De Kalb-avenue, Brooklyn, cars illustrative of the idea which the rowdy element entertains of our present law system. As the car, well filled with gentlemen on their way to business, entered the Fifth Ward, celebrated for its illicit rum-distilleries and its Navy-yard, two ruffians who had evidently been out all night, got in. In a few moments one of them commenced abusing an old gentleman, calling him all manner of filthy names, and finally made an attempt to strike him. He was prevented from doing so by a young man, who quietly knocked the ruffian, the full length of the car, landing him on his back. The gentleman who had been first assaulted asked the conductor to stop the car, saying that he would call a policeman and have the rowdies punished "if there was any law in the land." The two rowdies thereupon flourished their revolvers, and one of them said, "Law be——! that do we care for your law!" These things are the only law we knew! The passengers, notwithstanding the formidable weapons presented, soon hustled the belligerent young Democrats off the car, and they retired, threatening to "put a bead on" each and every man in the car.

Such scenes are the direct result of Tammany Hall teachings, and the corrupt workings of a corrupt Judiciary. In what other city besides New-York or Brooklyn, could such an occurrence have transpired without the cowardly blackguards having received some legal punishment? The bully said truly that the revolver and the knife supply the only law which Tammany Hall recognizes.

Personal.

The friends of Mr. ISAIAH BLOOD, State Senator from the Saratoga District, learned yesterday that he is seriously, if not critically ill of bilious fever at his residence in Ballston. His daughter and son-in-law resident in this City, were called to Ballston yesterday afternoon.

Yesterday, in the Superior Court, Part I., two eminent English barristers, now on a tour in this country, were present with DAVID DUDLEY FIELD, Esq. The one is Mr. BRYCE, Professor of Roman Law in Oxford, and the other W. DICEY, Esq., Barrister at Law. Both gentlemen were introduced to Chief Justice BARBOUR, who was presiding, and invited to a seat with him on the Bench.

WASHINGTON.

The United States Government and the State Election—No Violation of the Laws is to be Tolerated—Senator Morton and the English Mission—The Cox Resignation—The Postal Service.

(Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Attorney-General AKERMAN telegraphed to the President today that matters were quiet in New-York, and that the resistance yesterday was not of a serious character. Threats of arrest and interference with United States officers having been made, the mission of Attorney-General AKERMAN to New-York is to consult with those officers and determine precisely the scope of their powers under the several enactments of Congress. This being definitely established, the officers will set up to it, and in such action they will be sustained by the entire power of the Government. No doubtful or questionable powers will be assumed by the officers, but they will enforce such processes and provisions as they are assured they will be sustained in executing. The preparations for this purpose are being perfected every day, and there will be no lack of authority to back up the officers. The Eighth United States Infantry will arrive in New-York Harbor to-morrow night, from Charleston. This regiment is about 600 strong, and will be reinforced by 400 recruits, who await its arrival. It will find quarters on one of the islands in the East River, and when the emergency is over, will proceed to the Canadian frontier, and go into Winter quarters. Other forces of considerable strength will find it convenient to concentrate in the vicinity of New-York during the next two weeks, and though few people will probably ever see them, the fact that they are on hand will be consoling to one party, and will exercise a wholesome restraint upon the evil-doers of the other. The United States officers charged with the duty of executing the laws of Congress for the preservation of the purity of the ballot mean business this time, and the Government means to sustain them. The Tammany Ring, and everybody else concerned, may rely upon that. Senatory MORTON returned from New-York to-night, where he has been looking into political matters. The naval forces at Brooklyn, and upon the waters of New-York Harbor will be held in readiness to sustain the officers in executing processes and enforcing the laws. There is no backwardness anywhere. The worst elements of New-York having threatened resistance, it is just as well for the people of New-York to understand that the laws will be executed, and peace and order reign on election day through the potent power of the United States Government.

SENATOR MORTON AND THE ENGLISH MISSION.

Senator MORTON has written a letter to the President, which was received today, formally declining the English mission. The reasons he assigns are entirely political, and believed to refer to the probability of being succeeded in the Senate by a Democrat, and to the influence that it would have upon the future politics of Indiana. He now considers it necessary to remain at home, to keep that State true to the Republican faith. Senator MORTON will make his letter public, to-morrow, from Indianapolis.

THE COX RESIGNATION.

It is hardly worth while to recur to the subject, but your correspondent desires to denounce as unqualifiedly false the statements of the correspondent of the Evening Post, asserting that he had made a statement upon the matter of the Cox resignation by authority of the President, and which he knew to be false. Your correspondent is not in the habit of parading the President or members of the Cabinet as authority for his statements. He sends facts as facts, obtained from what he believes to be reliable sources, and has never yet been rebuked by a member of the Cabinet for a false statement, and then sneaked out of it by asserting that it was inserted in New-York, as has twice been the case with the Post man the past two weeks. The public understand, of course, that all this row about the resignation is instigated neither by the President nor the Secretary of the Interior. They have authorized nothing whatever upon the subject.

THE CENSUS.

Between thirty and thirty-one million names of persons taken by the Assistant Marshals have been recarded, and received at the Census Office or about three-fourths of the entire population of the country. Every effort is making to spur the more delinquent Marshals into activity to avoid unnecessary delay in the completion of the work. Tennessee and some other Southern States are by far the most backward in sending in their returns; while not a single name has yet been recorded from the western district of Arkansas.

THE POSTAL SERVICE.

The annual report of the Postmaster-General will show that in 1869 the number of miles traveled annually in conveying inland mail was 90,120,488, while in 1870 it was 97,624,266—an increase of seven per cent. The cost of transportation was, in 1869, $10,406,801, and in 1870, $10,864,483—an increase of but four and a half per cent.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

APPOINTMENTS.

The following appointments were made today: JAMES L. HODGE, Postmaster at Little Rock, Ark.; JAMES SEELY, United States Attorney for Nevada; CHARLES R. BROUTON, Pension Agent at Providence, R. I.

DEFENSE OF SECRETARY SEWARD.

Major-Gen. MEIGS, in a published communication, vindicates Mr. SEWARD from Ex-Secretary WELLES in a Galaxy article, saying, among other things:

"The truth is, probably, that the real object and hopes of the President in both expeditions were attained. The Pensacola expedition sailed in secrecy and caused a loss to the United States of the strongest, in the finest Southern port and naval station, and saved the cost of a large blockading squadron for years. The Sumter expedition, of which the President and his Cabinet had been advised by the highest military and naval authorities, as shown by Mr. WELLES, to be impracticable, demonstrated and published to the world the resolve of the President to do all in his power to retain Fort Sumter. The correctness of the opinion of the President's advisers was shown by the result. I think I have proved that a perfectly loyal and patriotic motive and action on the part of Mr. SEWARD is consistent with all the documents cited by Mr. WELLES. The letter of Judge CAMPBELL was published when written. Mr. SEWARD did not think it necessary to reply to the accusations of having, as Secretary of State, disappointed the fond hopes of his present accuser, which now compel a notice of his extraordinary article. Mr. SEWARD held the confidence of Mr. LINCOLN as long as the assassin spared him. He sat at the Council Board with the author of the Galaxy article for nearly four years after Mr. LINCOLN's murder, and now, absent at the antipodes, he can rely upon his countrymen to stamch in their hearts the reputation of his great services."

POSTAL COMMUNICATION WITH INDIA.

It is officially stated for the information of the public that correspondence addressed to the East Indies may now be forwarded in the English, German and Italian mails via Brindisi, at the following rate of postage:

East Indies via England and Brindisi, for letters, thirty-six cents per each single rate of half an ounce or under, prepayment compulsory. British East Indies, except Ceylon and protected States of Further India, via Germany and Brindisi, for letters, twenty-eight cents per each single rate of half an ounce or under; prepayment optional; and for newspapers, book packets and samples of merchandise, four cents per each one and a quarter ounce, in addition to the postage rates chargeable on same from the United States to Germany, which postage charges are to be added together and collected in advance. East Indies, except Ceylon, via Italy and Brindisi—for letters, twenty-seven cents per each single rate of half an ounce or under, prepayment optional; and for newspapers, book packets and samples of merchandise, three cents for each one and one-third ounces, in addition to the rates of postage charged between the United States and Italy, on the same classes of correspondence, which postage charges are to be added together and paid in advance. The postal routes to the East Indies via Southampton and via San Francisco may still be employed for the transmission of correspondence from the United States to those countries, the rates of postage chargeable thereon, by such routes, remaining unchanged.

THE INTERNAL REVENUE COMMISSIONER.

It has been ascertained, on inquiry at official sources, that no person has yet been decided on for Commissioner of Internal Revenue, nor is it likely that an appointment will be made for several weeks.

THE INVASION.

The King of Prussia at Versailles.

The London Times' correspondent at Versailles describes the entry of the King of Prussia to the historical head-quarters of French royalty. He says: "The entry of the King into Versailles was simply what it was—a great historical event. But there was no attempt to make a show or extract capital out of it. The King is now virtually the head of armed Germany, and he lodges in the halls of the Kings, Presidents, Consuls and Emperors of France by right of conquest. Perhaps, as many of the Lord had not been on his side' his own efforts at the head of the German people would have availed nothing. It is not so easy to regulate a royal journey in the midst of war as it may be when royal time-tables are expected to be true to the minute. There are many unfounded stories in circulation about the King; Generals at the head of their staff are at their head-quarters to do him honor; there is a kind of informal levee along the line; there are hospitals in the field, convoys, ambulances, trains, and above all, there is the study of positions and the examination of new ground. The Crown Prince, attended by Gen. VON BLUMENTHAL, Count EULENBURG, Col. VON GOTTBERG, and a certain number of the members of his staff, left Les Ombrages early in the afternoon, in order to meet the King on his way at the outlines of his command. At 4½ the march of the Prussian battalions in greatcoats, with drums and fifes playing, and the bands now and then relieving them, put the population on the alert, and many hundreds of the people of Versailles, men and women and children, flocked toward Porte de Bue, along the Rue des Chantiers, and took up their positions along the street and in front of the Prefecture to see "Le Roi Guillaume" and "Le Bismarck" enter the City of the Kings. There was no dense crowd anywhere. Many of the windows were closed along the route which was promptly lined by the troops, almost from the Barrier up to the gates of the Prefecture. At the left of the space a company of infantry, with the colors, I think, of the Fifty-eighth Regiment, was drawn up. In the space in front of the grille of the courtyard a great mass of officers were assembled in a picturesque medley of uniforms, flanked by a crowd of people of the town on horseback, and including groups of strangers, among whom were Gen. HAZEN, United States Army, and Gen. PERCY HERBERT. The band of the regiment on duty was stationed on the left near the colors, and the people were allowed to come quite close to the grille and up to the elbows of the officers who had assembled to pay their respects to his Majesty. On the whole, there was not, I think, as many people in the streets as there were on the arrival of the Crown Prince. The novelty of Prussians in Versailles may have worn off; but surely a King of Prussia entering as a conqueror must be something worth

THE JACKSON MURDER.

The Trial Fairly Commenced Before Recorder Hackett.

Opening Address of Assistant District-Attorney Fellows—The Charge Against the Prisoner, and How it is Proposed to Prove It—Testimony for the Prosecution.

The trial of THOMAS JACKSON for the murder of ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS, on the 29th of October, 1869, was resumed in the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, before Recorder HACKETT. The Court was densely crowded during the proceedings, in expectation of a repetition of the lively scene which ushered in the opening of the trial, but the spectators were disappointed in this. District-Attorney GARVIN and Mr. FELLOWS conducted the prosecution, and Mr. JOHN GRAHAM, assisted by Mr. KINTZING, appeared for the prisoner.

On the application of Mr. GRAHAM, the witnesses for the prosecution, with the exception of the one at any time under examination, were ordered to be excluded from the Court-room.

OPENING ADDRESS OF MR. FELLOWS.

Assistant District-Attorney FELLOWS, in opening the case for the prosecution, said: May it please the Court and gentlemen of the Jury, we are approaching the close of a term during the continuance of which your labors have been arduous and constant. I congratulate you, gentlemen, that with the termination of this case, the responsible duties that for the past three or four weeks have been intrusted to you and myself will cease, and you will return, as you are undoubtedly most desirous to do, to your private vocations and your walks of life as citizens. In approaching the close of the term you have been intrusted with an unusual responsibility. I am not about to indulge in the ordinary advice and suggestions commonly made to jurors when they are intrusted with interests as important as those which are now confided to you, because I have watched you during the term. We have looked into each other's eyes in the conduct of other less important cases, and I have learned to appreciate you, as men who can understand the obligations of their oath, and who carefully weigh the evidence which is submitted to you, and who are prepared at all times, and whatever may be the nature of the accusation, honestly and fearlessly to adjudicate between the people on one hand and the prisoner arraigned for crime upon the other. I believe, gentlemen, all of you feel the solemnity of the oath with which on yesterday you clothed yourself. That you were sincere and truthful, before Heaven and in the sight of Heaven, when you affirmed that you approached this case with a heart and mind unbiased by prejudice, sympathy, animosity, and that you are prepared fairly and impartially to adjudicate upon an important case, the most important that can be confided to you, upon the evidence which is to be submitted. There were suggestions made yesterday, gentlemen, which you and I are bound to ignore, and all who are connected with the conduct of this case, although I don't propose for any length of time to comment upon them now. As for myself I believe that the issues there presented were wholly irrelevant and impertinent to the issue before you. As to the introduction of politics into this case, any participation in conduct, I do most earnestly before this Court and jury protest. As for myself, charged with part of the responsibility which is intrusted to the prosecution here, I solemnly affirm that I know but two parties in coming before you, which I shall endeavor to prove, the people on one side and THOMAS JACKSON, the prisoner at the bar, on the other, and I care not who may be urging the prosecution, if indeed, the charge was true. I would concede, for the sake of argument, to the fullest extent and latitude all that they have claimed, and ask you, gentlemen, under the determination of your oaths, what possible bearing it can have upon this case. Suppose that I or any other have been urging the prosecution of THOMAS JACKSON for the murder of ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS, what is it we have been doing? We have been simply demanding that there shall be an investigation into the case, which produced the death of a fellow-man, and that twelve unbiased men, the peers of the prisoner at the bar, capable by reason of their mental qualifications, the integrity of their lives and the honesty of their purposes, shall adjudicate upon the evidence submitted to them, and determine whether laws have been transgressed, and if so, it shall be vindicated at their hands. And that is all that could be done in this case. Whatever may have been the animus that has controlled the prosecution—and we may say exists—we concede to them to the fullest extent that influences have been brought to bear upon the prosecution. What could they do? Of what are they capable? Only of presenting the facts to the jury, unbiased and unprejudiced, and calling upon them to decide by the evidence submitted. It matters not, then, whether A or B, or any other man, shall have been the enemy of THOMAS JACKSON. The question for you to consider is whether he feloniously and with premeditated malice took the life of DOUGLAS on the 29th October, 1869; and if he did, in the contemplation of law he is guilty of murder, and under the rulings of the Court, if the testimony shall bear out the theory that we on the part of the prosecution make, did he thus take his life with willful and premeditated design; that he sought to kill him. If the evidence shall sustain that under the instructions of his Honor, as to the law, your simple duty is to render a verdict accordingly. If you find, gentlemen, he was justified in the act he did, you will express it through your verdict. That is all on the part of the prosecution we desire in this case. Whether this man belonged to one or another political organization is a question we do not care to inquire into; and on the part of the prosecution, you will hear no more from us the time I may close my lips until the summing up shall come, one word as to the political complexion of parties who may be interested in this case. It is alleged in the indictment that on the 29th October, 1869, nearly one year ago, THOMAS JACKSON premeditatedly, and with malice, took the life of DOUGLAS in Wooster-street, in Fifth Ward in this City, and in a saloon known as BRANNIGAN'S saloon. Now, gentlemen, you are anxious to get away from your labors here, yet not so anxious as to fail to give the case full deliberation. The life of a fellow-being is intrusted to your hands, and you are clothed with power for the purpose of this trial, very nearly akin to that of Omnipotence itself. By the fact which you shall speak, and the conclusion to which you shall arrive, this man is to know whether his life is to be forfeited for the act he has done, or whether he shall go out and live among fellow-men again. I have no desire to keep you beyond the limit absolutely necessary for the purposes of this trial. I shall make my remarks exceeding brief. I shall only present to you the facts which the prosecution shall attempt to maintain during their part of the trial, and upon those facts, after you have heard them, you will be called upon, at the termination of this case, fairly and impartially to arrive at your conclusion, between the people and the prisoner, of whom you stand alike the representatives and the guardians today. I alleged on the part of the prosecution, then, that on the 29th October ARCHIBALD DOUGLAS, in company with two or three others, were engaged in an altercation of words with THOMAS JACKSON. What was the subject of that altercation I don't know, nor do I care to inquire. It may have been of a political character, it may have been of a bigoted character. It is immaterial to the issue. But suffice it to say that angry words passed between them, and blows were struck. We will show you this took place outside the saloon in which the murder was finally perpetrated; that it ceased; that during its continuance no weapon was used; that DOUGLAS was jeopardized or hazarded; no danger was threatened, and even after these blows had passed entirely by, and DOUGLAS was attempting to escape by one door of the saloon, the prisoner entered at the other, and fired the fatal shot that brought him to his death. If we shall prove that state of facts, we shall contend that this is a case of murder, simple and pure; that it could be reduced to no lower crime; that it was time for passion to cool; that the moment of thought which the law renders necessary before it will accuse a man of murder had been had and exercised, and during that moment, when there was time for deliberation and passion had ceased to overcloud the mind, that the thought born in that moment was a thought of murder and a determination to take life. After this altercation ceased DOUGLAS entered BRANNIGAN'S saloon, and JACKSON came to the door at the Battery-place side, looked on, saw DOUGLAS standing there, and entered the building with a pistol in his hand. As soon as DOUGLAS saw him he immediately ran from him toward the door leading to Washington-street. As he stepped on the first step passing out of the door JACKSON fired the shot, which entered the back of his head, showing, beyond all question, the man was running away at the time he was shot, and that shot, three days afterward, produced the death of DOUGLAS. I might leave the case here, submitting these facts we intend to prove, were it not I feel it my duty, gentlemen, to call your attention to one of the important considerations that will be unraveled in the discussion of the case, and in the final deliberation which must be submitted to you. There are persons so formed by reason of constitutional infirmity, who lead lives shaped so much by the associations and scenes surrounding them, and the paths in which they walk and the influences which control and bear upon them, that we can excuse and forgive in them what we should scorn and shun and rebuke in others. If you see a person who has been brought up in schools of instance and vice, to whom the teachings of schools are unknown, the blessed influences that surround our brighter, our better, and our higher lives are never known—persons who are educated in sin and trained to lives of crime, who from infancy to their graves are stimulated and encouraged by those who surround them, and the influences which are brought to bear upon them to perpetrate these outrages against law, and those who assemble and trample down the rights of others, we might, perhaps, in charity and the strictest justice and in a spirit of broadening large humanity forgive and excuse such men. But if you shall find that one has committed a crime who at the very time he perpetrated the act, and for a long period antecedent, was trained in a school where he was taught to know the difference between vice and virtue, where he was especially instructed in the punishment which follows crime, the results of unhallowed passion, the consequences that come from giving free reign and scope and license to our misguided and blinded nature; when he was taught to know the law, when he was himself a conservator of the law and aware of the fearful punishment following such a deed—when you find such a man commits that the crime that we present to you today, then, gentlemen, it will devolve upon you in a greater extent to examine carefully his motives and arrive more deliberately and justly at conclusions as to whether this man did not know what he was doing, as to whether his mind could have been so clouded by anger, his reason and judgment so unstrung for the time, deliberation and reason so overwhelmed that he was incapable of forming a correct determination as to the consequence of the act he committed. In the person we have arraigned at this bar, charged with this crime, we present to you such a man. He stood, for many months before us, a free man among fellow-men. He has been tried before the Courts of this City, where, day after day, he saw criminal justice dispensed. He has stood here when men were called upon for charges of murder. He has heard from the lips of the assistant counsel who appears for him today, questions which affected the very organization of his mind, the judicial decisions from the Recorder's lips. He was constantly indoctrinated into the consequences of crime, and for such a man there is no excuse, unless it be in the fact, which he is called upon to prove, that he did it in the line of the accident self-defense. In this case we intend to urge upon you there was no pretext his life was threatened, or that even his limbs were imperiled. Whatever danger may have appeared, was passed moments before this shot was fired, and at the time the killing was done the man who was slain had tried by every means in his power to shelter himself from assault. He had retired into this building where JACKSON was not, was followed there by this man; he sought to escape through the open door, and while he was running away, while his back was turned on him and he was incapable of self-defense, the shot was fired which deprived him of life. Gentlemen, I have nothing to say in the prevalence of crime in this community. You are to judge of the end to which an attempt was made to assassinate O'DONOGHUE and MULLAN was not slain; but if you recollect before the trial murder was committed and you were acting under the solemnity of an oath, and such a statute provided for our guidance; when you were to set a precedent and establish what should be the punishment for a crime like this—I ask you, gentlemen, so far to divest yourselves of all feelings. You have solemnly sworn that you would make yourselves the impartial judges of the fearful consequences that have followed the the exercise of an unhallowed and unhallowed passion in our midst shall control or influence you in the least. The prevalence of crime has nothing to do with the matter of DOUGLAS. Upon the evidence in this case we shall endeavor to be judged, and all we desire to do is to look after the rights of the people, that there may be a fair hearing in this case upon the facts connected with the killing, and in that alone the jury may be called to act. I now leave the case in your hands, confidently relying on your honor, your judgment and your impartiality.

WILLIAM H. ABBERSON was the first witness. He testified that about noon on the 29th of October, 1869, he was stepping out of a barber's shop, in West-street, near Battery-place, when his attention was attracted by seeing five or six men fighting; about ten feet beyond him, in Washington-street, he saw parties had hold of one fellow-man; they separated; he recognized the prisoner, whom he had known for twelve months previously; JACKSON was very much excited, and struck a man who was standing near an oyster-stand near by; the prisoner then placed his hands behind his back, muttered his oath, and stepped toward the saloon door of BRANNIGAN'S saloon, facing Battery-place; he observed a man inside run to the door; JACKSON attempted to follow him, and he ran toward Washington-street; JACKSON ran outside to intercept him, and he ran back toward Battery-place; again the prisoner ran in this direction, and he followed; at the time he reached the saloon door, JACKSON had entered, and immediately afterwards witness heard a pistol shot; he went into the house, and saw a man whose name he ascertained to be DOUGLAS lying on the floor; his body was inside and his head extended outside the door; he returned into the street and addressed the prisoner "My God, what have you done?" he replied, "Why should I?" witness saw nothing in JACKSON'S hand.

Cross-examined by Mr. GRAHAM—I think it was from one to two or three minutes from the time I saw the men clinched until I heard the pistol-shot; I saw this man inside the door almost simultaneous with the expression; the prisoner was very much excited, and appeared to be considerably under the influence of liquor; the deceased was lying on his face at the time he was shot.

PATRICK WALL, No. 12½ Washington-street, testified that a little after twelve o'clock, on the 29th October, he was the owner of the saloon; and Mr. CODY, fighting; it continued for about three minutes, and they separated; saw DOUGLAS, the deceased, run into BRANNIGAN'S saloon, through the door at Battery-place; JACKSON went round to the Washington-street door; DOUGLAS then went toward the door of the Washington-street door; JACKSON also went round from the outside and entered the saloon; DOUGLAS started for the Washington-street door and JACKSON fired; the deceased fell with his face to the ground, and in the position described by the last witness; he turned him over; saw JACKSON with the pistol in his hand; the prisoner was about twelve feet asunder when the fatal shot was fired.

Cross-examined by Mr. GRAHAM—Between the time the witness got to Battery-place and the time DOUGLAS fell, about seven minutes elapsed; saw DOUGLAS holding JACKSON round the waist before the shot was fired, but could not tell the reason why.

PETER RILEY testified that on the day in question he saw DOUGLAS and JACKSON talking angrily in Battery-place; he interfered and a row occurred between them, and CODY; saw JACKSON put his hand behind his back, and the prisoner then ran around him; the accused ran into BRANNIGAN'S saloon, and JACKSON followed; they ran backwards and forwards for a short time, and JACKSON raised a pistol and shot him in the head; heard the shot and saw DOUGLAS fall; did not notice the pistol in JACKSON'S hand before he entered the door.

THOMAS COTY, THOMAS O'HARA and JAMES LEAVY gave evidence corroborating the testimony of the last witness.

JAMES B. THOMPSON, an officer of the Twenty-ninth Precinct, testified that on the day of the occurrence he went to Battery-place, having heard that there was a fight; about a day or two after he immediately came toward him and said he wanted to give himself up; he saw the deceased lying on the floor in BRANNIGAN'S, and conveyed the prisoner to the Station-house in Cortlandt-street; on the way he handed him a pistol, one of the barrels of which was loaded; witness asked him how it happened, and he replied, "I was doing something about politics; he asked if any one struck him, and he replied that they struck at him and that he was not going to be licked by anyone; he appeared to be under the influence of drink; when he entered the Station he said to the Captain that he was intoxicated in whisky; DOUGLAS was brought there, also, before the prisoner was conveyed to jail.

HENRY BRUMMERHOFF and JAMES DOUGLAS were examined in relation to the manner in which the deceased was conveyed to the Station; they brought him there on their shoulders, as the deceased did not seem to be conveyed in an ambulance; DOUGLAS also stated he remained with his brother at the hospital until he died, three days subsequently.

Dr. ANDREW, Police Surgeon, testified that shortly after DOUGLAS was brought to the Station-house in the morning of the 29th, he attended him; found a wound on the middle of the back of the head, which he at first thought was not serious; further investigations, however, made him form a different opinion; he placed his finger on the wound and found it was about a third of half an inch in diameter; he applied the probe to it and at the depth of one inch and a half came in contact with a hard substance; a pistol-shot would produce such a wound; the deceased was shortly afterward removed to the hospital, and witness did not see him subsequently.

Dr. W. H. CARMICHAEL gave corroborative evidence, and the Court adjourned until this morning.

The Decline in Gold—A Weak Invention of the Bears.

Yesterday morning an effort was made to effect a decline in the price of gold by means of slips which purported to be issued from the offices of two evening papers, which contained the pretended "news" that Gen. BURNSIDE'S mediation between BISMARCK and FAVRE had been successful and that terms of peace had been agreed upon. These slips were sold by boys in the street and speedily found their way into the Gold Room. The intelligence had preceded their arrival, however, and had the effect of depressing the price of gold to 111½. As soon as the slips were produced, however, the unreliable character of the "news" became known, and the market reacted to 111¾. Subsequently, under the pressure of heavy purchases, the price advanced to 112¼.

The Samuel Will Case—The Irreparable Johannes Makes a Motion.

At the opening of the Special Term of the Supreme Court, Judge BARNARD presiding, yesterday, GEORGE "the Count JOHANNES" arose and read an affidavit on which he moved for an order directing a stay of thirty days in which to make a case on appeal in the Samuel estate litigation, so summarily disposed of a day or two since. He did not see his learned brothers O'CONNOR and CARTER present to oppose, but he thought the Court would entertain the motion nevertheless.

Judge BARNARD—Perhaps they think there are no merits in your case, and that the Court will deny it without opposition. Some objection in your having intervened in the matter, we don't intend to pay the money in the meantime.

Counsel—Not your Honor.

Judge BARNARD—Yes.

Counsel—Oh, you have rather a mere handle; Mr. Will's friends Dolittle and the other gentleman are here, and they cannot pay the money. Judge BARNARD—Yes, I'm a mere handle. The Count smiled graciously on "his friend" Col. FISK, while "his friend" Col. FISK smiled grimly in return, at the same time showing evident symptoms of having experienced a sudden impediment in his nasal organ. "Exit the Count."

THE SHOOTING OF MYERS.

A New Phase of the Case—An Action for Damages Claimed—Mr. Weaver of Mr. Chambers.

A case which has occupied the Courts in Queens County in many forms, during the last year, came on for trial on the 24th at the County Court-house at Hempstead, before Judge BARNARD. It appears that Mr. GEORGE CHAMBERS, residing at Astoria, in September last unfortunately shot a young man named MYERS, while he (CHAMBERS) was shooting at a chicken upon his own premises, and about nine weeks thereafter young MYERS died. The father of the deceased, the plaintiff against CHAMBERS in the present action, made affidavit before Justice PARSELLS, of Astoria, charging CHAMBERS with Murder, and upon this affidavit CHAMBERS was arrested, and held to bail to await examination. Prior to the examination Mr. CHAMBERS made affidavit that CHAMBERS was about to leave the State, when he was again arrested and gave additional security. While on his way to the Court for examination he was again arrested, by a warrant issued by Coroner Burns, of Newtown, and for eighteen days was subject to arrest, pending a post-mortem examination. At the end of that time, it appearing that the boy was still alive, it occurred to the intelligent Coroner that he had been making an ass of himself, and Mr. CHAMBERS was again discharged. A few days afterward Mr. CHAMBERS was arrested on a warrant issued by a Justice of Jamaica charging him, upon the oath of MYERS, with murder. Mr. CHAMBERS at the time engaged the services of Mr. TOWNSEND, and, after a lengthy examination, was honorably discharged. Eight days after MYERS had commenced three civil suits against Mr. CHAMBERS, laying his damages at a very high figure. After his discharge in Jamaica Mr. CHAMBERS made affidavit charging MYERS with perjury, and upon the examination which was had, FREDERICK STALLENBERT Appearing for MYERS, and JOHN D. TOWNSEND for CHAMBERS, MYERS was held to await the action of the Grand Jury. Upon the termination of this examination, MYERS, feeling convinced that he had had enough law, made application to CHAMBERS to let up on him, and he consenting, mutual releases were given up, and dismissed whereby MYERS agreed to withdraw all actions now pending, and to cease to annoy Mr. CHAMBERS any further, and to pay all expenses due to his own counsel and pay Mr. CHAMBERS any further expense he might be put to, should he again be annoyed.

The action tried yesterday was one of the three civil suits, and was brought by Mr. SIMON LEVY, of this City, in favor of MYERS for loss of services, claiming damages at $5,000, and in which he stated he held an irrevocable power of attorney from MYERS authorizing him alone to make settlement of the case, and that MYERS had refused to prosecute plaintiff showing the extent of the plaintiff's loss occasioned by the death of his son, but no malice was shown. The defendant relied upon his releases. Upon the close of the testimony the Judge directed the jury to find a verdict for the defendant. GEO. W. STRONG and SIMON LEVY appeared for the plaintiff, JOHN D. TOWNSEND for defendant.

EPISCOPALIAN MISSIONS.

Second Day's Session of the Board of Missions of the Protestant Episcopal Church—Statistics of the Work Already Established at Home and Abroad.

The second day's session of the Board of Missions of the Protestant Episcopal Church was held yesterday at the Church of the Holy Savior, Twenty-first-street, near Madison-avenue. Previous to the business meeting there were religious services conducted by Right Rev. Bishop CLARKE, of Rhode Island; WHITTINGHAM, of Maryland; STEVENS, of Pennsylvania; CLARKSON, of Colorado, and LEE, of Iowa. In addition to the Bishops who were present on Monday, were Bishops CORNELIUS, of New-Jersey; HUNTINGTON, of Central New-York, and LEE, of Iowa. Bishop WHITTINGHAM, of Illinois, presided during the greater part of the day, Bishop LEE, of Iowa, being the presiding officer during the early morning. The first business of the day was the reading of a report from Bishop TUTTLE, Missionary Bishop of Montana and Idaho. The report states that during the past year 25 have been baptized in Montana. There are 41 communicants, 6 Sunday-school teachers and 100 Sunday-school scholars. In Idaho there have been 40 baptized and 6 confirmed. There are 37 communicants, 10 Sunday-school teachers and 125 Sunday-school scholars. In Utah the missionaries are constantly making war on Mormonism; 36 converts have been baptized and 15 confirmed, and 1 corner-stone has been laid during the year. There are 63 communicants, 20 Sunday-school teachers and 120 Sunday-school scholars. Bishop TUTTLE estimates that the Church property under his care at $61,000. The receipts from all sources for the year are $25,226 16, all except $1,720 56 of which has been expended for missionary work.

The report of Bishop RANDALL, of Colorado, Wyoming and New-Mexico, set forth that churches have been established in Denver, Central City, Nevada City, Golden City, Black Hawk, Empire, Pueblo and Idaho, while there are families of churchmen in Baldwinsville, Littleton, Greeley, Fair Play and Cañon City. In Wyoming there are churches in Cheyenne, Laramie, Cheyenne Pass and Fort Sanders. An increasing missionary is needed, whose sphere of operations shall be along the line of the Union Pacific Railroad. In New-Mexico, missionary operations are carried on in Santa Fé, La Mesilla and Los Cruces. Several schools have been established in various parts of this missionary field, the Jesuits contributing to the work. At Fort Wolfe Hall and Jarvis Hall, in New-Mexico, St. Mark's Academy, Cheyenne, St. Peter's Institute, Pueblo. The Indian missions in this section are doing well.

The report of Bishop CLARKSON, of Nebraska and Dakota, represents the missionary work in those jurisdictions as progressing favorably, and an appeal is made for an increase of funds for carrying on the work.

The report on the missions in China and Japan are interesting. The China mission shows signs of a steadily growing improvement. With the exception of the boarding-schools, 31 in, as a more satisfactory condition than at any previous time. It has a larger number of stations; a more efficient force; reports a greater number of baptisms (seventy) and confirmations (forty-eight); and in almost every respect is better able to carry on the work than ever before. The report of the out-stations is encouraging. Since the news of the most barbarous massacre at Tien-tsin a good deal of anxiety has been felt on account of the missionaries and foreigners living in Pekin, but later intelligence has reassured us, and it is believed that, with the proclamation issued by the Government and the foreign forces now assembled in the Yang-tse, all danger has passed. The statistics in this report show the following: Ecclesiastics, including the Bishop, 9; candidates for orders, 4; catechists, 9; teachers, 70; confirmations, 52; communicants, 164; scholars, 311; contributions, $6,818 98.

The edict against Christianity still remains unrepealed, and the persecutions at Nagasaki have shown that the Government is determined to enforce its penalties. The 4,000 deported during the persecution were almost entirely Roman Catholics, although it was not the Roman Christians of former times. The few who have been baptized by Protestant missionaries are mostly scattered in the provinces.

Though the result of the instructions sent by the United States Government to the Minister in Yeddo is not known, still Japanese and foreigners are soon confident that toleration must in time be granted. The Romanists have two or three missionaries in each of the open ports, and in four of the places have good foreign dwelling-houses, and large churches, completed or in course of erection. The Presbyterians have three missionaries and a missionary physician. The Dutch Reformed Board has three missionaries; the Church Missionary Society two, and the American Board one, while the Episcopal Church has 1 to one permanently.

The report of Bishop FAYE, as to the progress of the African Mission, is in the form of the statements concerning the operations in that field of labor, embodied in the annual report, which we gave yesterday.

All the above reports were referred to special committees made up of bishops, presbyters and laymen.

Bishop LITTLEJOHN, of Long Island, presented a report from the Special Committee, to which was referred the annual report of the Foreign Missions Committee. The report indorses all the recommendations of that Committee, and closes with a resolution urging the bishops and clergy to renewed activity in the missionary cause. This resolution gave rise to some debate, the objection being that it was a mere reiteration of the resolution passed at last year's meeting, which had produced no beneficial result. The resolution was finally adopted.

At the adjourned session, yesterday evening, the report on the African Missions was debated.

Indictments Against Repeaters.

At the termination of Judge BENEDICT'S charge, the Grand Jury were dismissed to their room. They there found indictments against several men who are charged with having committed offenses on the last day of election under the Congressional Election law. Their labors will be resumed today, at which time the new indictments will probably be presented to the Court.

THE POLITICAL PROSECUTION.

The Case of the Supervisor of Election Charged With Perjury.

Examination of Witnesses—Singular Development—Something About Tammany Sinecures and Other Matters.

The examination in the case of THEODORE ALLEN, who was arrested on Saturday last, at the instance of Tammany Hall, on a charge of having committed perjury by swearing that he owned property that did not belong to him, was commenced, yesterday morning, at Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice COX.

Mr. JOHN SEDGWICK appeared for the prisoner, and asked that the case be delayed a short time to await the arrival of his colleague, Judge STUART.

District-Attorney FELLOWS said he was anxious that the case should at once proceed, as he was engaged in the Jackson case, at the Court of General Sessions, and had to be there promptly at 12 o'clock, to open the argument for the people.

Mr. SEDGWICK finally consented that the case should go on, and Judge STUART in a few minutes afterward made his appearance.

JOHN GLENNON, the complainant in the case, was the first witness called. He said he knew the defendant; that he knew him to be in the habit of going bail for parties; that on one such occasion, in order to qualify himself as a bondsman, he made an affidavit that he was the owner of the property at No. 40 Prince-street; that he, witness, examined the books in the Register's office, and found that at the time he did not own that property.

Mr. SEDGWICK said the examination of a written document could not, in this case, be accepted as evidence.

Examination resumed—I found the property registered in the name of PETER W. LANGLEY.

Cross-examined—I am the complainant in the case; I live at No. 34 Varick-street; I keep a boarding house; I board there; I pay my board to the landlord; the landlord is Mr. MICHAEL NORTON.

Mr. SEDGWICK—Who asked you to make this complaint?

DISTRICT-ATTORNEY—I object.

Mr. SEDGWICK—I appeal to the District-Attorney, as an honorable and fair-minded man, which I believe him to be, whether such a question is not legitimate. We wish to show the motive of this prosecution, and I appeal to the Court to know whether we have not a right to inquire where the citizen who prosecutes lives.

DISTRICT-ATTORNEY—Whatever the motive may be, we have a right to investigate the facts. The question has no relevancy to the issue, even if we conceded it.

Justice COX said he thought the District-Attorney's objection well taken. Mr. GLENNON, in this case, was a mere ministerial officer, and I don't think his motives can be questioned. I have known him several years, and believe from my knowledge of him that he will tell the truth.

Mr. SEDGWICK said the Court must know that an exciting political contest was in progress, and it was the object of the defense to show that this complaint was prompted by political malevolence growing out of that contest.

The District-Attorney said: If the good old times there was rarely any excuse offered for criminal offenses except insanity, but latterly it had become the custom to assign political hostility as the cause of prosecution. I heard such excuse made in behalf of the man in the Jackson case, and now I hear it again in this case.

Mr. SEDGWICK said he wished to show that there was no parallel between this and the Jackson case. He did not impugn the impartiality of Justice COX, as that of Recorder HACKETT was impugned. In this case he wished to prove the motive that led to the prosecution was relevant, and then addressing the witness, he asked, "Did Mr. NORTON ask you to make the complaint?"

Question objected to by District-Attorney, and objection sustained.

As this point the District-Attorney said it was impossible for him to remain longer. He must be in the Court of General Sessions at 11 o'clock, and he had now barely time to get there. He wished therefore that the further cross-examination be postponed, and he be allowed to offer such evidence as he had, and then the cross-examination could go on in the afternoon, when he would guarantee that either himself or some representative from the District-Attorney's office would be present. He said the evidence that he had to submit was documentary—proof of search at the Register's office—and if objected to could not be received. It was, however, duly certified to by seal, and signed by Mr. SAVAGE, the clerk; it was not, as the law required, the best evidence that could be produced. Mr. SAVAGE'S evidence would be the best.

The evidence was objected to and objection sustained.

The District-Attorney then said, all he could do was, to state what the evidence was which the prosecution proposed to furnish. They proposed to show, he said, that ALLEN swore he was the owner of the premises at No. 38 Prince-street; that a man named LANGLEY made a similar affidavit; that it was found that the property was registered in LANGLEY'S name, and leased; that the tenant of LANGLEY is aware that he was the owner of the property.

Judge STUART said all that might be true, and yet neither of the men have committed perjury.

Mr. SEDGWICK said he wished the Court to understand that the charge against the prisoner was completely unfounded, as he was ready to prove. They are holding this man here, said he, for purposes which, if the Court was aware of, it would not tolerate—for political purposes. I insist that the evidence Mr. SAVAGE has, cannot Mr. SAVAGE be produced? He can be found at the City Hall Park.

His Honor said that an order had been sent for Mr. SAVAGE, but that he had not yet, perhaps, got down town.

There being no other witness for the prosecution present, the case was adjourned until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

About 2½ o'clock the examination was resumed, Assistant District-Attorney BLUNT appearing for the prosecution, Mr. GOULDING, Clerk of the Court, being deputed to take the evidence.

JOHN GLENNON, examined by Assistant District-Attorney BLUNT, testified as follows: I am searching clerk in the Register's office; I did not find any conveyance from LANGLEY to any other party.

The witness was cross-examined by Mr. SEDGWICK at length, and after answering many questions involving no new feature, was asked the following:

Mr. SEDGWICK—When did you last hold a place in any of the County or City departments?

Question objected to by the District-Attorney.

Judge STUART said the question was relevant, as the defense wanted to show that the avocations of the witness were such as to preclude his qualifications for searching.

The Court sustained the objection.

Mr. SEDGWICK said he understood from Judge COX that his evidence was taken subject to objection, but he did not understand how it was that the objections were all sustained on one side.

Cross-examination resumed—I never had a trade; at twenty-one years old I tended bar for a man named BUTTERS, in Hudson-street; I afterward tended bar for a man named MORGAN, at the same place; I quit tending bar for him about two years ago; I then held a place downtown; a place in the Street Department—Inspector of Lamps and Gas, I believe, or something or other; held that place until the Street Department was abolished; after that I went to live; I went to live in Varick-street, where I now live with the same gentleman, Mr. NORTON; he got me the place in the Street Department; I now work for Mr. CANNARY; I hold a place under the Public Works as Water Policeman; my salary as Water Policeman is $1,200.

Mr. SEDGWICK—Do you get all your salary?

Objected to by the District-Attorney on the ground of irrelevancy. Objection sustained.

The cross-examination was then resumed: Have worked for Mr. CANNARY since Sept. 14; keep books for him; Mr. CANNARY keeps a livery-stable; the firm is CANNARY & NORTON—Mr. MICHAEL NORTON; I don't get any salary from them; also hold a place in the County Clerk's office; during the time I was inspector of lamps and gas, as a clerk, and held it still; Mr. CHAS. E. LOEW appointed me; the salary is $900.

Mr. SEDGWICK—Who drew that salary for you?

Objected to and objection sustained.

Mr. SEDGWICK—In what name did you hold that office?

Objected to by the District-Attorney.

Mr. SEDGWICK—Well, this is getting to be a serious case. Here is a man who brings a charge of perjury, and we are going to show that he is guilty of perjury himself.

Judge STUART—As guilty as any scoundrel that ever lived.

Mr. SEDGWICK—Well, it makes no matter; the people will understand the answer.

Cross-examination resumed—Have held no other position at the same time besides the places already mentioned, and Secretary of the Horton Association; there is no salary or perquisite attached to it; my position in the County Clerk's office never occupied any of my time; don't spend any of my time in discharging my Water-Police duty.

Mr. SEDGWICK—Did you hold both of these offices under the same name?

Objected to and objection sustained.

Cross-examination resumed—I have a personal objection to answering that question.

Mr. SEDGWICK insisted on his question being answered, and Judge COX was called in to decide the matter.

Mr. SEDGWICK then appealed to his Honor to know whether he would not be allowed to prove the character of the witness, and to show that he had himself been taking the people's money for twelve months at the same time.

The Judge replied to such the objection he said the question was irrelevant.

Judge STUART contended that the witness' character was important.

Cross-examination resumed—Did you never say that your name was JOHN GLENNON?

Question objected to and objection sustained.

Mr. SEDGWICK—Have you not been in the habit of answering the question whether you have any other name?

WITNESS—I object to answering the question.

At this point Mr. BUSCHELL, who assisted Mr. BLUNT, instructed the witness not to speak when his counsel objected to the question asked him.

Mr. SEDGWICK wanted to know who Mr. BUSCHELL represented.

Mr. BLUNT said he was assisting the witness at this time.

Mr. SEDGWICK asked who he got his retaining fee from.

Mr. BUSCHELL said he was not on the witness stand.

The next witness examined was Mr. SAVAGE, who was examined by Mr. BUSCHELL. He testified: I am Deputy Register of the City and County of New-York; the search now shown me I have seen before; I did not make the search, but certified to it officially; the search was made in the office under my supervision.

Q.—Did you or not find any conveyance from PETER W. LANGLEY after Aug. 1, 1867, except as appears upon the certificate now shown you and signed by you? A.—I did not.

Q.—Do the words of your office show any conveyance of the property on the northwest corner of Prince and Mercer streets from PETER W. LANGLEY to THEODORE ALLEN or to any other person? A.—I found nothing, and personally did not look for anything; individually I can testify to nothing.

Q.—Is this instrument you hold in your hand signed and sworn officially in your office? A.—It is.

The instrument was offered in evidence.

Objected to by Judge STUART until the witness was cross-examined.

Cross-examined by Judge STUART—I personally made no search; was not in company with those who made the search; I know nothing about our records as to this property but what this search says forth; it requires some experience to search correctly for titles to property, and all matters of record in relation to real estate; our office does not certify to the correctness of any search, unless made by those experienced in that business; searching titles is made a special branch of business by the lawyers of the City; Mr. BUSZARD, a searcher in the office, made the search; he is skilled in searching; the search was irregular and not signed by the party who made it; the search was taken to be signed; I can't tell who brought it to the office; I don't know who paid for it.

By Mr. SEDGWICK—I am the first officer with whom applications for searches are filed; I then give it to the officer to search for; I did not date that search when it was received; if that search had got back to me it would have been done for three or four weeks; the person who got the search paid no fee for it; I gave it to him; I was requested by the Register not to charge the fee.

Mr. SEDGWICK—The Big Judge?

The search was here offered in evidence and objected to by Judge STUART, when Mr. SEDGWICK said it was unfortunate that all the objections of the defense were overruled.

C. L. GOULD, Court Clerk to the Second Judicial District Police Court, testified as follows: I searched for conveyance, either in deeds or mortgages, to be signed PETER W. LANGLEY, THEODORE ALLEN or any other person or persons, from Aug. 1, 1867, to the date of my search, which was last Friday, for any matters affecting the property on the northwest corner of Prince and Mercer streets; in Liber 1,082, page 488, of conveyances, I found a conveyance from PETER W. LANGLEY to THEODORE ALLEN.

Mr. SEDGWICK objected, on the ground that oral testimony was inadmissible when there was record proof.

The Court overruled the objection. Exception taken.

The witness continued—I found a conveyance from JOHN D. STRYKER and HANNAH L., his wife, to PETER W. LANGLEY for a consideration of $40,000, $5,000 cash and $35,000 for the assumption of a mortgage—no name; I then made a complete search among the indexes of grantors from the date of that deed up to the time of the search for any conveyance of that property to THEO. ALLEN; I found no such conveyance; I then went to the document known as the "Tickler," in the Register's office, to ascertain if it contained any such conveyance, and found none; I then went to Mr. SAVAGE'S desk and asked him to look in the conveyance memorandum for the last two days to ascertain if any conveyance had been recorded which had not been entered in the "Tickler;" and conclusions—I then made the official requisition marked "A" (the search given in evidence,) and handed it to Mr. SAVAGE with a request for a search forthwith, which was complied with; I identify that requisition as the one handed him.

Cross-examined—I took GLENNON down with me; I did not ask him whether he was an experienced searcher or not; did not care; took him down for the purpose of giving him the knowledge of certain facts; before I went there I met Mr. GLENNON, who asked me to go down with him to the Register's office and see me make a search; I met him by accident; he was the first one to my knowledge, who spoke to me about the matter; I examined all books necessary to make a perfect search; Mr. GLENNON examined carefully with me; his eye followed my finger on the page to the ninteenth part of an inch; I did not think Mr. GLENNON was there because he was summoned to attend this Court; the warrant for the arrest of ALLEN was given to Capt. MCCLERY, of the Fifteenth Precinct; he is not an officer of this Court; GLENNON came here on a verbal subpœna given him by Capt. MCCLERY; I was present when the subpœna was served; I met GLENNON in GLENNON'S presence; it was the same day; I asked GLENNON whether he was satisfied with the search; he said he was, and I then told him he had better come up to the Court and make his complaint; I do not know by which name JOHN GLENNON drew his three salaries.

His Honor said he had now kept the Court open an hour after the usual time, which is 4 o'clock. Mr. SEDGWICK said this man has now been kept a long time in prison, and I think the case has gone far enough to show that he should be bailed on bail, which counsel are prepared to give to any reasonable amount. There is not a particle of evidence that he is guilty of the crime charged. We are prepared to prove that he owned every brick in that house; the man is innocent, and should be liberated.

His Honor said that he could not see that the defense had yet given any proof to that effect.

Mr. SEDGWICK said that was English law, assuming a man guilty until he was proved innocent; but in this country we assume that a man is innocent until he is proven guilty. And what evidence is there, said he, that this man is guilty? Not a single fact. Was there any attempt to bail, to prevent Mr. ALLEN from purchasing the property on the very day after Mr. LANGLEY recorded it as having been transferred to him, and is there any law to compel him to make a record of his purchase. There is no such law, and then the case for prosecution is left to the grounds.

His Judge

[illegible] at the bank by the use of notes was fully proved by the testimony of a number of witnesses for the defense. The case was then adjourned to Wednesday, when the argument will be heard. The case was already reported by the Stenographer of the Times in full.

Richard and Boardman for plaintiff; Emott, Hill and Russell and Rosecrans for State of Connecticut; John H. Hurd for assignee in bankruptcy.

KINGS COUNTY SUPREME COURT.

Before Judge Pierrepont.

James Rickard vs. James Hanson.—The plaintiff brings action to recover $8,000, which he alleges he lost to the defendant while in company with him in the Spring of 1864, and which has never been repaid. The defendant denies that the money in question was a loss, but claims that it represents half of a pool which they drew in company from the Second Ward Bank. The case was tried last Spring, the late Grant-ville T. Jinks appearing for the plaintiff, but the jury failed to agree. The case is still on.

TUESDAY, Oct. 25—P. M.

The speculative movements at the Stock Exchange have been of more than ordinary interest today. In the morning, fraudulent printed dispatches announcing the termination of the war, and purporting to have been received by two of the City evening journals, were circulated in the Gold Room. The character of the dispatches was soon discovered, which deprived them of the influence which they otherwise would have had. In the afternoon there was a sharp turn toward stringency in the money market, which was directly due to speculative influences. The promoters of the movement are speculators known to be on the bear side at the Stock Exchange, and who have for their purpose a general decline in prices. The proportions which the operation is likely to assume it is impossible to forecast, but threats are made that the stringency will be so severe as to unsettle all the markets, although the profits are expected to be reaped entirely from the decline in Railway Shares. The current report is that the Bank of Montreal (whose President, we believe, is now in this City) has agreed to lend the pool large amounts of currency, for a high consideration, the currency to remain with the bank, and, of course, to be withheld from the market. The report credits the Bank with having been a free seller of gold since yesterday morning, and says that the currency lent, or to be lent, has been realized from such coin sales. It is this report which gives the movement a serious aspect. An attempt has been made, this afternoon, to create the impression that the money received on the City taxes, which are now being paid into the Broadway and Tenth National Banks, might be used for the same object, but from our present information we believe that this money will be disbursed by the City Chamberlain nearly as fast as received. An artificially stringent money market at this season of the year, it is perhaps unnecessary to say, would be extremely prejudicial to the business interests of the country, and we do not doubt that proper remedies would be sought to defeat the scheme should it assume threatening proportions. The ordinary Treasury operations for the next few weeks will be in favor of the City banks, particularly in the matter of their coin reserve, while nothing is to be apprehended from the currency movements to and from this centre, usual at this season of the year. During the early hours of the day money was liberally offered on mixed collaterals at six ⅌ cent., and on pledge of government bonds at five. After 1 o'clock, however, the rate suddenly became seven ⅌ cent. on all loans, and gold interest was asked. The change was without perceptible effect on the market for commercial paper, which is the last to respond to any turn in loans, and rates for prime mercantile acceptances remain at 7 to 8½ ⅌ cent.

All the sales of Gold have been between 111¼ and 111½, the lower price having been made on the fraudulent dispatches above alluded to. The volume of business has been above the average amount of late, and in the morning the dealings were excited. The Gold loan market has worked with more ease and regularity, as the result of the prepayment of the November interest without rebate, and the rates on loans have ranged from 1-64 of 1 ⅌ cent. per day for borrowing to 3 ⅌ cent. per annum for carrying. The payments of the November interest today amounted to $655,782, making a total since yesterday morning of $2,513,678. Previous to that time the total rebated interest paid out in this City amounted to $1,856,397 50. None of the 1871 Bonds were presented today. The Foreign Exchanges show more strength, although today's business has been moderate. At the close the leading drawers asked 109½ for sixty-days' bills and 109¾ was strongly bid; the short sight rate was 109¾ although sales in second hands were reported at 109¾@¾. Commercial bills are quoted 108¾@109 and are scarce, the market for them being somewhat influenced by the corner in the cotton market on October deliveries. The causes contributing to the general strength of the Market are the easier terms for gold loans, and the demand for remittances on account of November coupons.

The Public Funds have been dull and prices have receded a fraction in sympathy with lower Gold. At one time '67s declined to 110¼@110¾, but at the close were steady at 110⅝@110¾. The market has been without feature. On Thursday there will be the usual Treasury purchase of $2,000,000 of Five-twenties. State bonds continue dull, but prices are well maintained. Railroad Mortgages were firm in the morning, and on some classes a fraction lower in the afternoon, although at the decline firm. Central Pacifics closed at 90½@¾; Union Pacific Land Grants sold at 74, and the Incomes at 73½; the old Michigan Southern Sinking Fund bonds sold at 101½. In City Bank shares, we notice sales of Bank of Commerce at 123, of the Metropolitan at 120, and of the Fourth National at 105.

The Railway and Miscellaneous Share market was feverish and unsettled during the day, owing to reports concerning the threatened artificial stringency in the Money market, but at the close was strong, when the highest prices were made. The special feature have been New-York Central and Hudson, Lake Shore, St. Paul, Rock Island, North-west Preferred, Ohio and Mississippi, Wabash and Reading. In the miscellaneous list the chief interest centered in Western Union Telegraph and Pacific Mail. Express stocks have been neglected.

The following quotations were made as compared with Monday night:

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE WAR.

A special dispatch from Berlin to the London Times says the latest negotiations for peace have failed, because Prussia persists in demanding the cession of French territory. That journal, in advising the British Government to make no further efforts for peace, says that if it persists it must be ready to stake something on it. The London Standard says that negotiations are in progress between the King of Prussia and the Ex-Empress EUGENIE, with a view to the return of the latter to France to resume the Regency and make peace, and that her departure for France may occur at any moment. The Berlin Gazette says the Government is led to consider the attempts at negotiation by its desire to avoid further sacrifice of life. Negotiations for the surrender of Metz make slow progress. BAZAINE, it is said, ignores the Provisional Government in his communications. M. THIERS has accepted the mission to negotiate an armistice, but remains at Tours awaiting a safe conduct to Paris to consult with the Government there.

The town of Schlestadt, between Strasbourg and Colmar, on the railroad running south to Mulhouse and Besançon, capitulated to the Prussians on the 23d inst., after a severe bombardment. The Germans captured 2,400 prisoners and 120 cannon. A Brussels dispatch says 2,000 Frenchmen, from Thionville, have gone to the relief of Verdun. On Friday night the Germans attempted to bombard the place, but a sortie by the garrison disconcerted their arrangements. Two bodies of the besiegers, mistaking each others for enemies, fought for hours, inflicting heavy losses on each other. Advices by way of Tours continue to represent the garrison of Paris as persistently harassing the besiegers by night sorties, and a resident of Versailles says that the Franc-Tireurs kill many Prussians even in that vicinity. Bishop MCILVAINE, of Ohio, in a letter to the London Times, solicits aid for Americans in Paris, to be sent through Sir CURTIS LAMPSON, who remains there.

Senator MORTON has formally declined the Mission to England, on the ground that the Indiana Legislature, being Democratic now, would elect a Democrat to succeed him in the United States Senate, to permit which would be an impropriety on his part in connection with the interests of the Administration. The President has replied in equally freezily terms.

The National Executive Committee of the Union League of America met yesterday in Philadelphia, [illegible] transacting considerable business, adjourned to meet next month, subject to the call of the Chairman.

Who Wants Gov. Hoffman Re-Elected?

In the golden days of New-York, when honest men could take some part in its government—when "Hon." W. M. TWEED was a bankrupt, and JAMES FISK, Jr., was hawking shirt-buttons round the country, and SWEENY had not a dollar to bless himself with, and Gov. HOFFMAN was a respectable lawyer, and CONNOLLY a book-keeper on $2,500 a year—in those Arcadian days it was quite possible to see Judges engaged in honestly administering the laws, and the Police catching thieves, instead of acting under their orders. The accounts of City expenditure were not withheld because great frauds had been committed in them. It is all a matter of the past now. The whole system has been changed—and the man who has done most to change it is Gov. HOFFMAN, the tool of the impostors who stand at his back, and have used a respectable name to cover their own disgraceful deeds.

Who, then, has cause to desire the re-election of Gov. HOFFMAN? Assuredly not the public, who see the Courts of Justice closed to them, an enormous burden of taxation thrust upon them, the City half ruined, the shipping trade driven away, and every department of political life choked with corruption—merely to suit the purposes of the adventurers who make use of Gov. HOFFMAN, on the same principle that burglars push a little boy through a window to open the door of the house. The lawyers do not desire the Governor's re-election, for he has dragged their calling down to a level which it had never reached before in this or any other country. The respectable Democrats do not want him, for the enormous selfishness of his masters has swallowed up every post and office, leaving nothing whatever for Democrats who are able and willing to serve the community in an honest manner. The poor have no motive for wishing to see Gov. HOFFMAN re-elected, for he and his confederates have rendered it almost impossible for them to live within the City. Lovers of good government do not wish to see a mere lay-figure put in the Governor's chair. Mr. HOFFMAN has no will of his own. He puts corrupt Judges in the foremost positions, because the "Ring" constrain him. He signs bills to please JAMES FISK, Jr., and "Boss" TWEED—having not the slightest suspicion that there is anything questionable or wrong about them, so innocent and confiding is his nature. He is a mere effigy, while TWEED, SWEENY and FISK govern the State.

Who, we repeat, is it that desires the re-election of HOFFMAN? Mr. FISK has taken the trouble to give the public a clear idea on the subject. He has caused an order to be issued to all the employés of the Erie Railroad to vote for HOFFMAN and the Democratic Assembly nominees. His confidential agent goes about saying, as a correspondent declares, "We don't care a —— what's the rest of the ticket; but we must have HOFFMAN and the Legislature." Of course they must. Without HOFFMAN and the Legislature, what would become of JAMES FISK, Jr.? Abolish HOFFMAN, and you have deprived FISK of the means by which he is enabled to drive his four and six-in-hand all over the City, accompanied by abandoned women. You have prevented him from outraging the moral sense of the whole community. Without HOFFMAN to back him up, FISK would be amenable to ordinary processes of law—and, in that case, where would he be in three months' time? Not robbing the Erie shareholders—not flaunting his brazen-faced Jezebels in the face of the town; of that much, at least, we may be sure. No wonder he gives an order that all persons in the employ of the Erie Railroad shall vote for HOFFMAN! Everything depends on the re-election of that man. TWEED will be half ruined if the election is lost. SWEENY and CONNOLLY will be exposed. The whole "Ring" will suddenly fall to pieces. They will use every expedient to avoid this crushing blow. They are prepared to arm their ruffians, and annihilate every vestige of popular liberties. For their violence, however, the Government will be prepared. We cannot have the City placed under mob law. Look at the people who are working for Gov. HOFFMAN's re-election—TWEED, SWEENY, CONNOLLY and JAMES FISK, Jr. Is not that alone enough to ruin the candidate? It is the simplest issue ever presented to any people—dishonesty and an unbridled despotism on the one hand—honesty and purity of government on the other. Will the decent families of this City be contented to see JAMES FISK, Jr., that scandal to the community, nominate a Governor, and elect him, in conjunction with his accomplices, in defiance of the will of the people? It is impossible to believe it. HOFFMAN has only the TWEEDS and FISKS at his back—the men who have crippled every department of business, who have ruined hundreds of merchants, brokers, and hard-working men. On which side, then, we appeal to the reader, will you stand? Will you decide for a pure government once more, or vote for the scoundrels?

The Tammany and Erie Partnership.

The alliance of the Erie Ring with the Tammany Ring is notorious and complete. Erie contributes lavishly to election funds, and applies the screw along the entire length of its road in favor of Tammany candidates. Tammany reciprocates the kindness by carrying Erie schemes through the Legislature, protecting Erie frauds in the Courts, and otherwise guarding the Erie managers against the public they have outraged, and the shareholders they have swindled. FISK and HOFFMAN, GOULD and TWEED are general partners in a concern whose ramifications extend throughout the State.

The effect of Tammany's rule upon the credit and prosperity of the City has its counterpart in the effect of Erie upon Wall-street, and the vast interests of which it is the centre. One, by oppressive taxation as a consequence of profligate expenditure, drives hosts of good citizens into New-Jersey. The other, by its rascalities, frightens prudent people from Wall-street. One makes our Courts the hiding places of knaves, and our administration of justice a mockery before the world. The other consummates with impunity schemes which, in other countries, would bring their authors into the felons' dock, and so taints the financial atmosphere that capital seeks some safer place of operations. The injury inflicted by Tammany upon the City we cannot estimate. The loss inflicted by Erie upon Wall-street does partially admit of calculation.

A general want of confidence and prolonged stagnation are among the present characteristics of Wall-street. Respectable brokers complain that they are not making their expenses. To the uninitiated, the daily volume of business yet looks large; to those familiar with the position, the show of business indicates only the strength and activity of Rings. The public have no lot or part in the matter. And for this condition of things Tammany and Erie are jointly responsible. Erie would have been powerless but for Tammany's support. Assured of that, FISK & Co. entered the street boldly and proceeded with their plans. They introduced the tactics of knaves into the Stock Exchange and the Gold Room, and broke down legitimate transactions in stocks by means best known in the low gamblers' den. They scared honest operators from the market. They made confidence impossible. They ruined the business of brokers who refused to be parties to their fraudulent transactions. They created wide-spread demoralization, and entailed upon the business of the Street a discredit from which it will not recover until the Tammany and Erie partnership is destroyed. Not till then will FISK & Co. receive their deserts.

One form of the injury done to Wall-street is revealed by the gross record of its transactions, which now amount to not more than one-third of the total shown before the league of Tammany and Erie became an accomplished fact. Here is the proof, based upon sales of stock at the Stock Exchange within three periods:

	Shares.
Sales, January to September, 1868	11,088,000
Sales, January to September, 1869	8,288,000
Sales, January to September, 1870	4,013,000

As the Tammany and Erie firm first made itself felt in Wall-street in 1868, its blighting influence is, by these figures, rendered apparent. The street has lost two-thirds of the business which at that time imparted to it activity and profit.

The effect upon transactions in Erie shares is still more suggestive. Taking three early months in 1868, and three early months in the present year, as the bases of a comparison, we reach this result:

	Shares.
Erie sales, January to April, 1868	1,220,977
Erie sales, January to April, 1870	56,506

The price of Erie stock in 1868 was $75; in 1870 it is $25. And the total number of shares being 700,000, the loss on each hundred shares has been $5,000, and the aggregate loss $35,000,000. All as a direct consequence of the abuse of power by the combination of the Erie Ring with Tammany.

The loss to the brokers from the falling off in general business they can best estimate. The decline in sales represents a proportionate decline in commissions. The loss on this item alone cannot be estimated at less than a score or two of millions.

Shareholders and brokers are not the only sufferers. The vast mercantile interest sympathizes with Wall-street; distrust and demoralization there imply the presence of disturbing elements in every branch of industry and every form of honest trade. When the final balance shall be struck, the disaster and infamy for which the Tammany and Erie partnership is responsible will make men wonder that its dissolution has been so long delayed.

Brooklyn Politics.

The Conventions which nominated the Brooklyn Republican county ticket, and the candidate for Congress from the Third District, seemed to be thoroughly harmonious in their action, and to foreshadow a united vote of the party for their nominees. Subsequent events, however, have shown that not only were the candidates not the choice of the entire party, but that very many Republicans will do what they can to defeat their own ticket, rather than see some of the men upon it hold office as their representatives. This opposition seems directed against Mr. E. D. WEBSTER, the candidate for Congress for the Third District, and Mr. MADDOX, the nominee for Register, who is considered one of his main supporters. Against both of these gentlemen a very bitter feeling of hostility has been developed. It is asserted that Mr. WEBSTER has for some time manipulated the party organization to secure a controlling influence, and that in this effort he has had no end in view save his own preferment. The Republicans of the Sixth Ward, where he formerly resided, assert that he sowed dissensions in their ranks which are not yet healed, and that the only reason for his removal from that ward to the Seventh, where he now resides, was that he might run in the Third, instead of the Second District, which is hopelessly Democratic. The friends of Mr. WEBSTER, on the other hand, claim that he is a faithful adherent of the party, always alive to its best interests, and that he has spent both time and money in its service. Notwithstanding this defense, the opposing Republicans of his district have nominated Alderman WHITING, of the Twentieth Ward, in his place. A mass-meeting is also to be held next week to set before the public the causes of complaint against Mr. WEBSTER, and affidavits and testimony are being taken to any extent. Ex-Mayor STRYKER has also been nominated for Register against MADDOX, and Gen. JOURDAN, the candidate for County Clerk, has withdrawn his name, being, it is said, unwilling to appear as a supporter of the Webster party. It would not be just, in view of the few statements which have thus far been made public, to pronounce Mr. WEBSTER responsible for what is charged against him. There is, however, no disguising the fact of his unpopularity with a large number of the Republican voters of Kings County.

If some compromise between these contending parties cannot be effected, the utter defeat of the Republican ticket in Brooklyn is a foregone conclusion. Divisions, and candidates only partially popular, are dangerous where a party has a very large and undisputed majority, but when, as is the case with the Republicans across the river, they are generally in the minority, they are practically suicidal. HUGH MCLAUGHLIN, the Democratic candidate for Register, has many opponents among his own party, and Mr. SLOCUM's advocacy of the removal of the Navy-yard has alienated many votes from him, so that the Republican candidates may be elected if the party will unite on them. There is yet time to choose new candidates, if those now in the field are seen to have no chance. With a new ticket and a united Republican vote, there is a very good prospect of a Republican victory in Brooklyn. Which of the nominees first chosen will consent to tender his resignation for the good of the party? We cannot afford to court defeat in Kings County, where the State ticket will be unusually strong this year on account of the large vote WOODFORD and KAUFMAN will receive from their fellow-citizens. If the Republicans of Brooklyn persist in their unhappy divisions they will be forging their own fetters, and must expect little sympathy when they find that it is too late to effect their deliverance.

From Arizona Status.

Some discoveries have lately been made in New-Mexico which will doubtless be the subject of protracted and highly interesting archæological research. Gov. ARNY, the Special Indian Agent for that Territory, is the authority for the existence of these curiosities, his knowledge of which has been gained by personal inspection. It became necessary, in the discharge of his official duties, for Gov. ARNY to visit the Utah Indians at the west of the San Juan River. To do this he had to traverse a part of the great range known as the Sierra Madre Mountains, and here, particularly in what is called the Cañon de Chelly, the discoveries referred to have been made. We have of late been so overwhelmed with accounts of astonishing natural wonders newly found in the heart of the continent, that Gov. ARNY's descriptions of strange ravines, whose walls tower perpendicularly to an altitude of from one thousand to two thousand feet, "the rock strata being as perfect as if laid by the skilled hands of masons, and entirely symmetrical," may excite only passing comment. But the ruins found among these lonely cañons will attract more eager and substantial attention.

These consist, we are assured, of the deserted remains of ancient Aztec cities, "many of which bear the evidences of having been populous to the extent of many thousands of inhabitants." The term Aztec is here used in its common and inaccurate sense; being applicable, in strictness, to only one of the seven Mexican tribes which collectively bore the name of Nahuatlecas. These tribes are supposed to have come from the north, from a region known as Astlan. Their traditions say that they emerged from seven caverns in that region, which most investigators have placed north of the River Gila.

The interesting question now arises whether these vast cañons or mountain gorges described by Gov. ARNY, and affirmed by him to be filled, in some instances, with ruins, may not have been the original Astlan. It is at least evident, on reading his descriptions, and comparing them with such traditionary chronicles as we already possess, that this supposition is extremely plausible. The period of the departure of the seven tribes, and of their arrival in the Valley of Mexico, is commonly reckoned to have been between 1064 and 1168. Perhaps a close examination of the newly-discovered ruins will have the effect either of affirming or rectifying this estimate. In any case it will doubtless furnish us with important revelations of the past history of the continent.

The accounts already received from Gov. ARNY and his party are substantially to the following purport: The ruins discovered are of stone and of great extent. In each town or collection of buildings one edifice has been found, hewn out of the solid rock, about twenty feet square, containing one room, and in this room a single human skeleton. In the centre of these apartments there are traces of fire, and the theory of the observers is that these solitary rooms were altar-places, and the skeletons those of the officiating priests. It will be remembered that fire was always kept burning, as a religious rite, on the altars of the Aztecs; the Indian tradition being that ultimately it would light MONTEZUMA back again to his people—he being not an earthly ruler only, but their Messiah or Eternal King. It is asserted by our informants that the structures contain handsome arches and other architectural devices and ornaments; and that the builders must have been skilled in the manufacture and use of edged tools, in masonry and in other mechanical arts. Some of the buildings, unlike most of the ruins further south, in Central America and elsewhere, are reported to be seven or eight stories in height. There are no staircases within these lofty piles, so that it is inferred the upper floors were reached by ladders planted against the walls. Others of the edifices are perfectly round, built very substantially of cut stone, and plastered inside. Tokens abound of the occupation of these places by dense and well-instructed populations, and it seems reasonable to anticipate that to the wonders of natural scenery and mineral treasure abounding in that neighborhood, there is about to be added such records of the men who once dwelt therein as will be, at least, as interesting.

The only doubt likely to be raised relative to the importance or probable significance of Gov. ARNY's discoveries, is whether his buildings may not belong to the class of "Casas Grandes," once held to mark the successive steps of the Aztec migration, (which is supposed to have taken over one hundred and fifty years from the starting point before reaching Chapultepec,) but since attributed to the Moquis or to the Pueblo Indians. If the accounts that have come to us are precisely accurate, we should say this hypothesis was out of the question; since the buildings would necessarily have been the work of a far higher civilization than any of the class last named. It must be owned, however, that the love of the marvelous is strong in the human breast; and, further, that there are few things people who are not actual experts more easily deceive themselves about than the comparative rank of architectural remains. We shall await further and more detailed accounts from the Sierra Madre Mountains with interest, and with hopes that the discoveries of STEPHENS and the researches of PRESCOTT are to receive worthy additions, and possible illumination, from the heart of the continent.

The "Ring" Judges and the General Term.

The exposure which we have made of the iniquitous proceedings of Gov. HOFFMAN, in his appointments of Judges to hold the General Terms of this department, has been allowed to remain unanswered for several weeks—simply because there is no answer to it, as every honest lawyer knows. We have given a plain statement of facts, and in not a single point can that statement be controverted. But our strictures have excited so much public attention that the Ring feel compelled to make some kind of a response. We can only say that if the article in the World of yesterday is the best defense they can make of their case, they had better have remained silent.

The charges made by the TIMES against Gov. HOFFMAN in this matter were direct and specific. In consequence of the public scandal arising from certain notorious suits, a law was passed which gave to the Governor the power of selecting, from the thirty-three Judges belonging to the Supreme Court throughout the State, the names of three who should sit as a General Term to hear the appeals in each judicial department for the period of five years. This duty was supposed, even by the Judges themselves, (as appears from Judge BRADY's letter, recently published in the TIMES,) to require the whole time and attention of the persons assigned for its performance. The Bar Association of this City, composed of the most eminent lawyers, irrespective of party, and which had been organized for the purpose of purifying the administration of justice, endeavored to secure a hearing from the Governor, upon the merits of the names suggested for these most important positions; but their application was contemptuously disregarded under the vail of a flimsy excuse. Gov. HOFFMAN thereupon proceeded to appoint, as the Judges most qualified to sit in this great City of New-York, which transacts the great majority of the law business of the State, such men as GEORGE G. BARNARD and ALBERT CARDOZO, the very men whose judicial acts provoked the attempt at legal reform which their appointment frustrated. We further asserted that their conduct, since their appointment, had been in strict accordance with their former antecedents.

The only excuse that the World can offer is that the Governor was under no obligation to "import" Judges from one department into another, and that he followed the spirit of the Democratic Party, "that each locality shall be governed by officers elected by itself;" and it quoted from the debates on the new Constitution to show that the Constitutional Convention refused to make such appointment compulsory.

It would seem, however, that the Governor is not as familiar with the "spirit of the Democratic Party" as the editors of the World. If the law was plain, and coincided with those political principles, which the gentlemen of the Ring cherish so strongly as sometimes to interfere with their moral attributes, why did the Governor feel himself called upon to publicly apologize for his appointments, and say he had been "constrained" to make them? Constraint generally implies the exercise of force—the being compelled to do something when you would rather leave it alone; and it would, therefore, seem either that the theory of the World must be an afterthought, or that the Governor did not know his duty to his party—which any one who has watched his political career will be very loth to believe.

But the World evades the whole question in ignoring the character of the Judges selected by the Governor, on the same plea that it defended the "principle" of the Erie bill, while ignoring the fact that the measure threw the control of the road into the hands of swindlers.

The question of residence fades into insignificance, when compared with the question why Gov. HOFFMAN "felt himself" constrained" to appoint men known to be corrupt, to occupy the most important judicial positions in the City and State. Is there any one who does not know who BARNARD and CARDOZO are, or who are their associates, and their successful suitors? When the World spoke of Judges in the Court-house, "who sold justice for a price," did it not refer to them? Did it not accuse these very men of unfaithfulness only a few months ago? Gov. HOFFMAN was perfectly familiar with all these facts. He had known the characters of the Judges whom he appointed for years past, and knew just what they had done, and were willing to do for the party and the Ring, and as he felt "constrained" to appoint them, it is pretty plain to the public who put the screw on him.

This is the question which the World may answer, if it can, but it must not evade the real issues by nonsensical talk about the Democratic principle of localities governing themselves.

Will Mr. SAMUEL TILDEN, or Mr. RICHARD O'GORMAN, explain to us why the Controller is afraid to issue his report? Will either of these gentlemen say, in the face of the public, that it is right and proper for a man in Mr. CONNOLLY's position to keep the accounts of public expenditure a secret—while a great deficit exists in his office? Does the Mayor approve of this course? TWEED and FISK, Jr., do, no doubt—but has Mayor HALL no protest to make on the subject?

At the United States Circuit Court yesterday a Grand Jury was impaneled to investigate charges connected with the violation of the United States Election law. The name of Mr. JOHN JACOB ASTOR was on the list, but when it was called no response was made to it. Subsequently Mr. ASTOR appeared, and we regret to say, "desired to be excused from serving." This is the sort of spirit which has thrown our public affairs into the hands of unscrupulous adventurers. The Astors of the community do not care who perform the offices which appertain to citizens so long as they can be "excused from serving!" They leave everything to professional politicians, and then wonder how it is that the scum so often makes its appearance at the top. It may be very inconvenient to serve on a Grand Jury, but gentlemen like Mr. ASTOR ought not to be above sacrificing their own convenience for the benefit of the public once now and then.

In the case of "RAMSEY against the Erie Railway Company," called on yesterday in the Special Term of the Supreme Court, Judge BARNARD remarked that he had no "dislike to the defendants"—that is, to JAMES FISK, Jr., and his accomplices. That will not be much news to the town. Judge BARNARD has given numerous proofs of the absence of any prejudice on his part toward JAMES FISK. Mr. DAVID DUDLEY FIELD appeared, as a matter of course, for FISK. The guiltiest man in the community is entitled to the benefit of counsel—but if a lawyer sees a case perseverting in a course of which he cannot approve, he will advise his client to desist from that course, or else retire from the case. Mr. FIELD is not obliged to connive at all the iniquities of the Erie Ring. He does so, however, and does it with an apparent relish, which tends much to establish him in the confidence of JAMES FISK, Jr. How does Mr. FIELD manage to reconcile his social pretensions, or his character as a lawyer, with the part he is playing in this Erie swindle?

Our Irish-American friends, last night, contributed their share to the popular enthusiasm which the opposition to Tammany gradually but surely evokes. Hearty in their attachment to the cause championed by Gen. WOODFORD in the present contest, they so far appreciate the exigencies of the hour as to accept the recommendation of the Republican State Committee with regard to the support of the best available candidates in opposition to the dominant Ring. Mr. GREELEY, who was one of the speakers, urged cordial acquiescence in the nomination of LEDWITH for the Mayor, and his remarks upon this point reflect the prevailing tone of the gathering. The resolutions adopted are cordial in their indorsement of the National Administration, and emphatic in their expression of its claims to the support of Irish-American citizens.

The Knickerbocker Ice Company will not be elevated in popular estimation by the exposures to which proceedings instituted in Brooklyn have given rise. Some caution may be necessary in estimating the value of statements prejudicial to the Company, which emanate from witnesses formerly in its employ. But their statements in this case are too explicit to be passed over unnoticed. They attribute to the Company the use of false weights in serving their customers, and systematic over-charges in a shape that does not essentially differ from gross extortion. The plan pursued by the ice companies during the late season, invests these exposures with a special interest.

Yesterday we had tidings that French caprice questioned the motives of England to an extent that interfered with her efforts at mediation. Today we have information that these efforts have come to naught, because of Prussia's unwillingness to entertain any proposition not involving a recognition of the claim to territorial acquisition. Whatever the cause, the negotiations, which for a moment bore a hopeful aspect, have failed. Considering the temper of the belligerents—the arrogance of Prussia's King, and the folly of the Press and Ministers of France—the result should occasion no surprise. The real wonder is that the London Times at length accepts a lesson which, to most observers, has been obvious from the outset. "If England persists in negotiating for peace, she must be ready to stake something on it,"—says the oracle. Nothing could be more reasonable. It is idle for the Gladstone Government to make a harmless diplomatic move, and then imagine that a grave duty has been discharged. The only mediation that can be of any avail is that which takes the form of intervention; and intervention implies a responsibility which timid Mr. Mousybags declines to assume.

The fall of Schlestadt places the entire department of the Bas-Rhin in the possession of the Prussians, and releases a number of troops to complete the reduction of Alsace. At the present rate for advance in the east, it is scarcely probable that any progress beyond Belfort, the southern point of the Haut-Rhin, will be made this season. Besançon and Dijon, and, consequently Lyons, may therefore meanwhile be considered as safe. The complete occupation of Alsace is now, however, but a question of a few weeks, and the obstinacy of Prussia with regard to the question of a rectification of frontier is not likely to be diminished by the actual possession of the line of the Vosges.

According to this morning's telegrams there appears to be little prospect of the early capitulation of Metz. According to the Kölnische Zeitung, the Prussians calculated upon its surrender during the present month, and had as a corollary thereto drawn up a plan of wintering in "the conquered parts of France." The main feature in this scheme is, that the section of country forming an irregular square, of which the two sides should be the Upper Rhine from Basel to the Lauter, and a line drawn from Paris to the Belgian frontier, should be occupied by three to four hundred thousand men, while, in the event of Paris being taken, the rest of the army should be allowed to return home. This scheme, be it noted, is seriously proposed, even in the event of peace, negotiations being entered upon on the ground that "no signs exist that would justify us in supposing the French will soon form a Government with which a peace might be concluded, with a certain prospect of its remaining in force for the future."

THE CABINET MAKERS.

Latest Amateur Efforts to Reorganize President Grant's Cabinet—Secretary Cox's Resignation and the Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Some of the Cabinet makers, now that Senator MORTON has formally, in a letter to President GRANT, declined the mission to England, have started a report that Postmaster-General CRESWELL has been designated for that foreign position, and Col. J. W. FORNEY for the office to be vacated by Mr. CRESWELL. Both the President and Mr. CRESWELL, when they read the report, were pleasantly surprised at the programme which had been thus arranged. It is safe to say that the Postmaster-General has no present intention of visiting England, nor has the President yet selected a Minister in the place of Senator MORTON. As erroneous reports have lately been made in connection with Cabinet changes, the following statement may be of interest in the way of correction: It will be recollected that after the name of A. T. STEWART, nominated to be Secretary of the Treasury, was withdrawn from the Senate, that of Mr. BOUTWELL was substituted by the President. Judge HOAR had previously been designated as Attorney-General. When the intelligence of the nomination of Mr. BOUTWELL, he hastened to Washington, and at the first Cabinet meeting he attended, he said to the President that, in his opinion, there should not be two Cabinet officers from the same State. Therefore, whenever it should be thought that his own resignation would relieve the President from the slightest degree of embarrassment in this particular, he would esteem it a favor to be so informed, in order that his successor might be selected from some other State. The President was not only friendly to Mr. HOAR but gave him his entire confidence. Frequently offering to resign, and anticipating an early release from the duties of Attorney-General, Judge HOAR never established himself in house-keeping in Washington, nor did he bring his family hither.

It has been published that while President GRANT sojourned at Long Branch attending the races, Secretary COX was devoting himself to business in Washington, but it is known that while at Long Branch the President did not attend the races, and that meanwhile Secretary COX was absent an entire month. It was during Gen. COX's absence that he, by letter, tendered his resignation, and it may be stated, with like confidence, that the reasons for Gen. COX's retirement involved no difference whatever on public affairs, and, contrary to report, there was entire harmony on the policy of conducting Indian affairs, through the agency of civilians, selected for their business qualifications, as well as for their known benevolent character. The only thing that could be construed as involving disagreement between the Cabinet was the McGarrahan claim. A year ago, the President expressed to Secretary COX his desire that no patent be signed in his name either for McGARRAHAN or the New-Idria Company, until Congress had finally acted upon the subject, as much corruption had been charged on both sides, and as the question was undergoing legislative inquiry, even before the present Administration came into existence. On the 23d of August last, the President wrote Gen. COX a note, in which he communicated similar views, and intimated that the signing of such patent by the Secretary appointed to sign land patents for the President, unless by his own specific order, or through the Secretary himself.

The Secretary, on the reception of the President's note, promptly gave the required instructions to the Land Patent Secretary. Gen. COX explained to the President that McGARRAHAN's case was not before the Department. It was the New-Idria Company's claims to the same quicksilver mines, the possession of which is contested by McGARRAHAN. But this matter was not the cause of the Secretary's resignation. The reason given for the withholding of the correspondence between Secretary COX and the President, the resignation and its acceptance, is that it was, at the time it took place, considered to be private by both parties, and, as now represented, involves no difference on public measures as a cause of official separation.

The attendance of buyers at the sale of Mr. R. G. WHITE's library last evening was greater than the first evening, and the bidding was consequently more lively. THE REPUBLICAN RALLY.

Mass-Meeting of Irish-American Republicans at Cooper Institute—Speeches by Major Haggerty, Horace Greeley, Gen. Kilpatrick, and Others.

Cooper Institute was thronged, last evening, by an assemblage composed of Irish and American Republicans, and a few ladies, who had assembled to take part in a demonstration in favor of WOODFORD and KAUFMAN. The hall and platform were handsomely decorated. Over the President's chair was a bust of WASHINGTON, and on either side busts of HENRY CLAY and DANIEL WEBSTER, entwined in American flags. Over the central arch were the words, "Irish-American Central Club," and the side arches bore the words "WOODFORD and KAUFMAN," and "We must have a pure election." The pillars throughout the hall were entwined with blue bunting covered with stars, and American flags were festooned in the arches, while the speaker's desk was covered with the Irish and American flags entwined. The meeting was called to order by Mr. THOS. MCGRAIN, who announced that Major JAMES HAGGERTY would preside.

The Major was received with most enthusiastic cheering, and when on taking the chair made a stirring address in behalf of the Republican platform and candidates.

MR. GREELEY'S SPEECH.

When Major HAGGERTY had concluded, he introduced HORACE GREELEY, as the friend of the working man. Mr. GREELEY was received with immense enthusiasm, and was frequently interrupted by applause during his speech. He said he attended the meeting of Irishmen that evening, not as a political associate, but as a personal friend. During circumstances of adverse fortune he was thrown into close companionship with Irishmen; he conversed with them, and learned to understand their purposes and wishes. He learned from them better than ever before the story of their wrongs, and he saw that the demand of the Irish people for a local Parliament was a righteous demand. He disclaimed any desire to favor the Irish more than any other race. He looked upon them as one of the many races struggling against oppression, and he felt bound to sympathize with them, because was the cause of freedom the world over. [Cheers.] He had differed with them in the past, and doubtless would in the future, but he never, he believed, lost their respect, for he did not deserve it. He never entered a Know-nothing lodge to oppress them, nor never assumed a green dress to palaver and cajole them. [Applause.] But with reference to the coming election, he desired that all past differences should be forgotten. The curse of slavery in the South had been abolished, and he doubted if its destruction was a subject of regret. Let the people of the North and South forget they were recently arrayed in bloody contention, and let them unite in the solution of the question of the hour—shall they have elections in future? So long as you have a ballot-box, where one man puts a handful of honest votes to be counted, and puts in a hatful, that is no election. [Applause.] There was no enemy to the republican institution like the ballot-stuffer, and if it is continued all honest citizens, seeing the utter futility of voting, will cease to do so altogether, or rising in honest indignation, hurl by force the tyrants from their power. [Applause.] When it is established these elections are carried, not by voting, but by false voting and counting, the poor man will have lost all power of election. It will become a game of money against money, for the largest purse will control the greatest poll. Mr. GREELEY referred to the Democratic complaints against the census returns, as the Marshal was unable to ascertain that there were not more than 870 people in a district where the Democratic vote was 884, and, referring to the candidature of Gen. WOODFORD, said the efficiency he had displayed in the discharge of all the offices to which he had been previously appointed, was a guarantee of what he would do when he would take the Governor's Chair on the 1st of January next. [Applause.] In reference to the local politics, he believed it was the duty of all honest citizens of New-York, without distinction of party, to support THOMAS LEDWITH for Mayor. [Applause.] Mr. LEDWITH did not belong to his party, but he frequently voted for men of opposite politics when he thought it was the interest of the State, though he sometimes made a grievous mistake, as in his support of Mr. O'Gorman. Mr. LEDWITH had been a Democrat in the City for many years. He had been re-elected in opposition to Tammany Hall by a handsome majority, and he believed he would do his duty faithfully and honestly, and he exhorted all to vote for and elect him. [Applause.] He might deceive them, but he cannot deceive God, who, he believed, would turn out the trusted the great City would yet be saved by Divine help. [Applause.] He could name more Kilpatricks, Grants, and Sherman, that would come, when men of integrity and worth would alone fill their public offices. Let them vote for LEDWITH, and though he did not belong to their party, they should obtain the purer government of the City aside from partisanship. In conclusion he said that political appearances indicated that this happy consummation may not be far distant.

The Union Glee Club was then introduced, and sang "All Hail to Our Beautiful Land." On being encored they sung a ditty in the tune of "Captain Jinks." This pleased the audience greatly, and the Club favored the meeting with another verse.

The President then introduced JOSEPH J. O. CLARKE, who spoke substantially as follows:

SPEECH OF MR. CLARKE.

He congratulated his audience on the enthusiasm manifested, and then proceeded to speak of Irish Republicans as a class of men who were always earnest for the right. He alluded to the release of the Fenian prisoners by Gen. GRANT, and said that it was not a party dodge before election. The Democrats at Rochester resolved that it was time to let the Fenians out, hoping to make capital against Gen. GRANT; but Major HAGGERTY went to Washington, and by the exercise of his influence procured the release of the Fenians. The Democracy at Rochester also passed another resolution, and managed to sympathize with the struggle in Europe in such terms as would suit both the French and Prussians at the same time. The Democrats had made a charge against Gen. WOODWARD for relation to the slave trade, a business which they had always upheld. But they were like the chameleon, white in Ohio and green in this State, and when the Chinese came to be a power, the Democrats would be yellow, as in California. They were a sort of invisible green in this State, something like the color OAKEY HALL wears upon his coat on grand occasions. A man named ADAMS, who had been a sort of standing candidate for office in Massachusetts, had said that the Republican Party was too fond of exhibiting its trophies. But with GRANT at our head, and the people at our back, we intend to make such trophies as will be laurels in the standard of the Republican Party.

Major HAGGERTY then introduced Gen. KILPATRICK, alluding to his famous raid up to the very walls of Richmond during the war of the rebellion. The General was received with enthusiastic cheers, and spoke substantially as follows:

GEN. KILPATRICK'S SPEECH.

I do not think I overestimate the importance of this grand gathering—this coming together in such vast numbers of the Irish Republicans of New-York—when I assert that it seems to promise a new and more prosperous era in the history of the politics of the country. Can we overestimate the importance of this movement? We are gathered here, almost in the very shades of Tammany, which has misruled and robbed this Metropolis, and misruled and plundered the Empire State until it has become a byword and a reproach throughout the land; Tammany from whose high throne proceed the edicts which enable the great Sachem to amass his fortune of millions in less years than the numerals that count his millions; Tammany, which has given to its supporters the sweet consolation that "Hanging is played out in New-York;" Tammany, which is typified by the slung-shot, knife and murderous pistol of the street ruffian. Yes, gentlemen, and we are also almost within the precincts of the marble palace of Erie, the greatest of the iron arteries of New-York—stolen from its legitimate owners and devoted to the private gain of unprincipled shoddyites and political tricksters. Erie, which was content to have its abiding place within the brown walls of that unpretending building in Chambers-street, but which has now taken the flight to the doubtful regions of the opera bouffe and ballet of Eighth-avenue. Erie, which should be the pride and boast of the State of New-York, but which is, today, really Tammany's twin-sister in iniquity. We have assembled here in the very centre of corruption and fraud, to call these robbing distasters to account. You have assembled together as Irishmen, with all the traditions of that liberty-loving people to inspire you, and as Republicans and citizens of New-York, with the recollection of all the political wrongs you have suffered at the hands of this same Tammany and Erie to incite you to new efforts, and renew energy in wresting this great City and State from the control of these stockjobbing gamblers and conspiring Sachems. It is well known to you and the nation that fraud and corruption such as this country has never before known exist here in your very midst, that it is the friend of Tammany and Erie, that it insures to their sole benefit, that it is the shame and disgrace of your City and State, and that it only can be wiped out by blotting the Ring of Tammany and Erie from existence. This, I repeat, is no time for soft speeches or tender reproaches, when men manage the concerns and destinies of this City and the industrial interests of this great State, not for the public benefit, but for private gain, and in the interest of private ambition. Who are these managers? Only a few days ago Mr. TWEED's people met in convention at Rochester, to go through the farce of nominating that man for Governor of New-York State whose strongest claim to the nomination outside of this City, is his aristocratic respectability, and his extraordinary claims decided for the ballots of those Irishmen who know something of the aristocratic respectability across the water by experience, and have learned it in the history of their families. This was the Convention which refused to recognize the only respectable element in its party—the Young Democracy of New-York. This was the Convention that nominated the very respectable JOHN T. HOFFMAN, and yet it took a train of thirteen cars on Prince Erie's road to convey the thieves and roughs of this City, who gather when Tammany assembles, to dictate the division of public plunder, and browbeat and bully the unruly into Mr. TWEED's subjection. The communities along the Erie Road, between New-York and Rochester, today consider robbery and violence as much a part of the proceedings of the Democratic Convention as was the nomination of JOHN T. HOFFMAN. Such is the character of the men who control the politics of this City; who assess your taxes; who expend your public moneys; who buy the Judiciary as sheep are brought to the shambles; who put men in nomination, not for their merits, but for the number of strikers and repeaters they control; who fill your newspapers with outrages, robbery and murder, and who, not satisfied with municipal plunder, extend their operations across the entire State. Is it not well known to you that certain momentous broken, some of whom have gone bankrupt in the Secret gold lace of the navy, the plumes of the army and the agility of the ballet, have combined with Tammany to give up that magnificent line of railroad extending across your State to the permanent control of men who had no more right to it than they have to the cents on your backs? Do you not know that it was commenced at Albany, and that JOHN T. HOFFMAN signed the bill legalizing the robbery of the merchant, mechanic and widow who invested in Erie stock? There is one view of this gathering which makes it peculiarly gratifying to me as I doubt not it is to every one present. I refer to the union of the assemble Irishmen of this City with the Republican Party—Irishmen who refuse to submit longer to the dictation of Tammany. Since 1861 it has been my fortune to act with the Republican Party, and I have seen many gratifying sights which have impressed, no one fact has so impressed itself upon my mind as that I have invariably found the Irishmen arrayed against me and in the Democratic Party; and my wonder and astonishment at this has grown greater with time, as I learned to know more of the Republican Party, and the yearning for freedom and hatred of tyranny which characterize the Irish people more strikingly than any other on earth. I never could understand why an Irishman should leave his life-long oppression in his land, and, coming to this free land, join hands with those who have ever been the bitter enemies of freedom and true Democracy—why he could not see through the hypocritical sympathy and political chicanery of the leaders of the Democracy. I know something of the Irish character. I know that when the stability of this great Republic was threatened in the rebellion, Irishmen rallied to the flag of the Union throughout the length and breadth of the land, and the lustre of their achievements, their gallantry and prowess shines on every page of the history of the Republic. In the official records at Washington it is recorded that at the battle of Antietam the heroic Sixty-ninth, of New-York, an Irish regiment, officers, rank and file, went into action in the hottest of the fight, and laid down one hundred lives upon the bloody field in defence of the American flag. The New-York Sixty-ninth and the old Irish Brigade will be remembered by every true American patriot as long as there is anything left worth remembering. And now tell me, sandid Irishmen, friends of the Irish soldier, tell me which of the two political parties of the country has best rewarded the Irish soldier and the Irish soldier's widow and orphan? What proposition has there been submitted in the Congress of the United States for the relief of the soldiers, either in pay or bounty that has not come from the Republican Party—and has it not ever found its opposition, bitter opposition in the Democratic Party? What measures of relief or reward either proposed, or advocated for the soldier, his wife or children? Tell me, Irishmen, what has the Democratic Party ever done for you in return for your votes, which it now claims as a matter of right? In their meetings they call you Deserters. Deserters from what? From Boss Tweed's lying flag? Great it. So be it recorded in your credit and honor forever—but deserters from the flag and free principles of your adopted country never—and all the puerile efforts of Boss Tweed and Tammany's bedizzoned tricksters can never sully your fair name and Irish fame.

The Generals retired amid tumultuous applause, and the Glee Club then came forward and sang "The Sword of Bunker Hill" and "Columbia, We Love Thee."

OTHER ADDRESSES.

Mr. RICHARD MCLEOD was then introduced, and made a few remarks, urging his hearers to adhere to the principles of the Republican Party, as the Democracy of today were not the party of the past as it was founded by JEFFERSON and administered by JACKSON. The Democrats had threatened that there would be a riot in this City on election day if Gen. GRANT should attempt to enforce, but there was Jackson at Washington who would enforce the laws at any hazard. The speaker quoted the words of the war of the rebellion, which was inaugurated by Southern Democrats, and aided by the treachery and treason of the Northern Democracy. TWEED and HALL are old Know-nothings, yet we allow these men to control the State of New-York. While they were Know-nothings they kept Scrawled Irishmen, and in fact those who made them and the Democrats were one party. The Republicans organized them, swept down slavery and defeated the Democracy. The speaker referred to JAMES and BENJAMIN BIGGER, "Sandy COLE, E. O. PERRIN, and others who were prominent Know-nothings, and are now prominent Democrats. The men who lead the Republican Party are those who have fought Know-nothingism from the first. He concluded by asserting that in every question for the welfare of the country the Republican Party took the lead, while the Democrats were in opposition.

Mr. THOMAS KELLY then read the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, and the meeting adjourned with cheers for the Republican State ticket.

Whereas, We, the Irish Republicans of New-York and Brooklyn, in mass-meeting assembled, feel called upon to take an active part in the great party of liberty in the present contest; and

Whereas, We see in President Grant and his entire Administration a noble instance of faithfulness to the best interests of the nation, of economy in the finances; his reduction of the debt by over $100,000,000; in the funding of the public debt at a low rate of interest; in his prompt recognition of the French Republic, the moment it was established; in his action at the Irish Republicans, he released the Fenian prisoners arrested for a breach of the Neutrality laws; and

Whereas, The purity of the ballot-box is assured by the very existence of the fifteenth Amendment, which tampered with liberty code and depotism begins; and

Whereas, The American Republic rests on the great principle of universal suffrage, the right of every man to be represented in the making of the laws which he is required to obey; and

Whereas, The Tyle oligarchy known as Tammany Hall have invaded the ballot-box, by having tens of thousands of fraudulent naturalization papers, by having perjured ruffians to vote as repeaters, thereby casting more ballots in certain districts for their candidate than the entire population amounted to; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves to support the candidates of the Union Republican Party in this State—the Governor, Gen. STEWART L. WOODFORD, a gallant soldier and patriot, and the Lieutenant-Governor, SIGMUND KAUFMAN, and also we support the remainder of the ticket. Be it further

Resolved, That we pledge ourselves to assist, to the extent of our power, the United States authorities and all honest citizens, Democratic or Republican, who combine with us for the overthrow of Tweed, Hall, Fisher and the rest of the Ring, and if the Republican nominations for City officers, we pledge ourselves to support all honest Democrats in their war upon the ruffianly "Ring;" and be it further

Resolved, That we tender our hearty thanks to the President for his unremitting attentiveness in our petition to release the Fenian prisoners, and that for this and his wisdom in guiding the ship of State and guarding the interests of the Republic, we pledge him full measure of our enthusiastic support.

THE LEDWITH RALLY.

Speeches by Jos. Bloomenthal, Mr. C. Barrett, Gen. Hillyer and Hon. Thos. A. Ledwith—Resolutions in Favor of an Honest Vote and a Fair Count—Immense Enthusiasm.

The first grand rally of the campaign to ratify the nomination of Hon. THOS. A. LEDWITH for Mayor, took place at Apollo Hall last evening. The large hall was crammed to overflowing with the independent Democracy of the City, and others desirous of a reform in the City Government and an honest man for Mayor. The meeting was called to order a few minutes past 8 o'clock by JOS. BLOOMENTHAL, Esq., the Chairman of the General Committee of the Young Democracy, who, by virtue of his office, presided over the meeting. After calling the meeting to order, Mr. BLOOMENTHAL spoke substantially as follows:

ADDRESS OF MR. BLOOMENTHAL.

GENTLEMEN OF THE REGULAR DEMOCRACY OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: This grand rally tonight augurs the success of the honest democracy on the 8th of November next—a day that will become memorable in the annals of this City as inaugurating a new era in the body politic and elevating the honest and incorruptible THOMAS A. LEDWITH to the Office of Magistracy. It is not necessary that I should pass eulogiums on our candidate. His personal and official history are known to you all. His name has been received everywhere as the best possible guarantee that we mean to carry out the principles for which we are organized. His name is a watchword around which the good men of every party can rally to save our City from the infamous Ring that now rules over it. The signs of the times are all propitious. Mr. LEDWITH's name has been received with acclaim, and so far as public expression has manifested itself, we may predict that THOMAS A. LEDWITH will be the next Mayor of New-York. The Chairman then introduced as the first speaker Wm. C. BARRETT, Esq., to whom he playfully gave the title of "Judge."

ADDRESS OF MR. BARRETT.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: I am extremely thankful to your Chairman for his courteous introduction; but in all my life I never had no judicial position; I never expect to be a Judge, and I look for no political favor at the hands of my fellow-citizens. I am a Democrat in heart and in feeling, and am opposed to Tammany Hall. [Great applause.] I will raise my voice and use my influence to suppress what I believe to be a monstrous fraud on the citizens of my adopted City. I know that I but echo the sentiment of my fellow-citizens when I say that hour by hour our prospects increase, and that on the 8th of November we will redeem our pledge and give to New-York an honest City government. It needs no prophet to foretell this. There are men against whom, when Mayor HALL officiated as your public prosecutor, charges were made four years ago. These charges have been allowed to sleep in the pigeon-holes of his office, and since then the men have been taken up for past alleged offences in the City. In pursuance of these notices, Mr. A. OAKEY HALL was cognizant of these alleged facts I do not mean to say. But if he were a faithful public officer, he should then have acted on these charges, and not now, when these men are acting against Tammany Hall, cause the many indictments to be dragged from the nooks and corners of the public prosecutor's office. [Loud applause.] But I have a more serious charge against Mr. HALL. He has tried to corrupt the minds of my unsophisticated countrymen, and cause them to commit perjury in aid of Tammany Hall. You all know that a law was passed in this State to protect the purity of the ballot-box—a law which I defy any honest man to say is not wholesome, just and humane. It is a law to prevent perjury in the procuring of naturalization papers. It is a law prohibiting other men from voting fifty times, which can only vote once; [immense applause;] it is a law prohibiting a scoundrel and a vagabond from taking a poor ignorant Irishman before a Court and causing him to swear that he is entitled to citizenship, while this scoundrel perjures himself by swearing that he has known him to have been living five years, when perhaps the poor fellow has been only twenty days in our City. Is there anything wrong in such a law? anything that honest men and legal voters need be afraid of? [Cries of "No," "No."] Is not the ballot a right as sacred in the eye of every citizen as his right to dandle his babe? would you allow your right to property to be swept away in this corrupt manner? Where are your political institutions, if ten thousand men can, in this illegal way, in ten days, pass upon them? Yet, Mr. HALL has proclaimed to the world, not by word of mouth, but published, even last evening, that this law is unconstitutional. If, after this showing, after a knowledge of the facts, any Irishman votes for A. OAKEY HALL, he ought to be denounced as faithless to the country in which he intends to make his home, and faithless to the country which he left. He deserted his audience to mark the prediction, that the sun would not set on the 8th of November before some of "the Ring" would be put within the four walls of a prison. He was glad to be able to announce the determination of the Federal Government to furnish those who pollute the registry, with cheap lodgings on the banks of the Hudson River.

The residue of Mr. BARRETT's address was devoted to a denunciation of the Tax Levy, which he termed a sink of corruption, by which Controller CONSOLLY was fixed in office for four years, denounced that officer for not making his quarterly report as provided by law, and concluded by urging the Young Democracy to exert themselves on election day, and redeem the City from the rule of the corrupt Ring.

After the applause bestowed on Mr. BARRETT as he resumed his seat had subsided, Hon. JOHN FOX presented the following resolutions, which were read and adopted amid loud and long-continued cheers:

RESOLUTIONS.

The regular Democracy, and citizens of New-York, in mass-meeting assembled, do hereby declare the following as their unanimous and determined resolve:

First—That the chief and fundamental basis of free government is the sacred right of suffrage, and the right to life, liberty and happiness.

Second—That the present Ring Government of this City, composed as it is of entirely unprincipled corrupt and desperate leaders, who only power for their own aggrandisement, and who have in a few years amassed immense wealth by a system of the most disgraceful political trickery, is unworthy that it only the confidence and support of the people of this City, but deserves, as it will receive, the execration and condemnation of every honest man.

Third—That the political firm of SWEENY, TWEED, CONNOLLY and HALL have not only misgoverned the City and squandered the people's money, but have robbed them of the practical right of franchise, and have rendered life insecure, every a by-word, and bringing political ruin on the City.

Fourth—That for these sins and others to innumerable to mention, the honest voters of New-York are resolved to break this corrupt Ring, and drive these plunderers out of power, and of the people from the places they now disgrace, and use only for the most dishonest and base purposes.

Fifth—That so believing, and so determined, we hail the nomination of Hon. THOS. A. LEDWITH, as the fitting choice, the honest man, incorruptible Magistrate, and enemy of the Ring, as the happy augury of the people's emancipation from political servitude, and as an expression of the great spirit of the people that is to elect THOMAS A. LEDWITH as our Mayor on the 8th of November next.

Sixth—That the ticket nominated in connection of our municipal affairs. It [illegible] by honest men and corruptionists. It relies upon the impunity that has attended its predecessors in office, and upon the [illegible] of the polls. It boasts of which no account has been rendered; [illegible] millions of dollars have been squandered upon the City of that organization; offices are multiplied, and all immense number of officers placed on the pay-roll of the City, having no business to perform; life and property are becoming daily more insecure; [illegible] are abandoning their business in this City to escape the insolent and constantly increasing and exorbitant taxation; our municipal government is but an agency to oppress, demoralize and plunder its citizens, and is the reproach of the world.

Repeatedly have organizations been formed within the Democratic Party of the City for the purpose of breaking the power of this corrupt despotism, which has established centralization and imperial rule over our people.

State endeavors have failed because the [illegible] of Tammany Hall have been attacked by [illegible] leaders. At such opposition, and because, when other expedients failed, they secured auxiliaries from among the Republicans to aid them in crushing their adversaries.

It has therefore become the duty of the Republican Party in this City to take measures for the purpose of overthrowing the men who control Tammany Hall. Accordingly, at the regular meeting of the General Committee for the present month, when the usual call was authorized for the holding of elections to choose delegates to the several nominating conventions, a resolution was adopted prescribing that no person should be entitled to vote who held an office, directly or indirectly, under the Democratic City Government. The wisdom of this resolution is obvious to every person familiar with the history of our politics. The office-holders of Tammany Hall must and will obey the bidding of that organization, and hence, when acting with the Republican Party, whether in conventions, associations or committees, in their official capacity, tend to mislead in its counsels, and to betray the trust and confidence. But by the conspiracy of certain individuals holding places in the City Government, and at the same time acting as members of the Republican General Committee, the terms of the resolution were violated, and the attempt was made to form our opponents in assemblages into Democratic conventions. A Police force was placed at every district headquarters, compelling the Republican voters to submit to be cheated of their rights, or to hold primary elections elsewhere, while Democratic conventions were protected and assisted in fraudulently electing delegates. This action had its inception in the councils of the Tammany leaders, and stamps the members of the Republican General Committee who engaged in it, and all others aiding and abetting it, with the brand of treason to the Republican Party.

We, as a party, protest against these usurpations and treacheries, but to no purpose. They have been deaf to our appeals, and have resisted by fraud and violence every endeavor to procure the fair verdict of the Republican electors. We have betrayed or vituperatively opposed every effort to overthrow the rule of the Tammany Hall. They have no foot-hold remaining except among our political adversaries. They openly deride the acts of the Federal Administration, and express an utter want of sympathy with the Republican State ticket. We have no alternative but to leave them performing their chosen work as the auxiliaries of the Tammany organization. We must regard Tammany Hall with the same sentiments which were entertained by WILLIAM L. MARCY—as the enemies whose men and principles are bought, sold and betrayed.

False representatives cease to be representatives. The body assuming to be the Union Republican General Committee no longer expresses the sentiments and wishes of the Republican voters of the City, but is used and directed against them. We, therefore, the Republican County Convention of the City and County of New-York, duly elected by the Republican electors of the several district associations, relying upon our political brethren here and throughout the State, for countenance and approval, have accordingly formed a new organization which shall be devoted solely to the establishment of the principles and policy of the Republican Party, and to the unequivocal support of the President and his Administration. We have applied for and received aid and counsel from the Republican State Committee, and hope in our new position to receive, as we will so receive, the confidence of our fellow citizens of like faith and sympathies throughout the State and nation.

On motion the Committee was authorized to print 20,000 copies of the address for distribution.

A resolution was adopted that a Committee be appointed by the Chair to confer upon the State Committee and take their advice with regard to the reorganization of the party.

The Convention then adjourned to Friday evening next.

SOLD OUT.

Attempt of the Leaders of Waterbury and Smith Ely Functions to Carry Their Ad-herents Over to Tammany—Rebellion in the Ranks—A Scene.

The Democratic Union General Committee of the Waterbury and Smith Ely faction met last evening at Masonic Hall, to nominate a County ticket. NELSON J. WATERBURY opened by reading the report of the Executive Committee on officers of this Committee. They were as follows: PATRICK KERRIN, Third Ward, as Chairman; CHARLES H. MOORE, of the Twentieth Ward, Treasurer; PHILIP J. MCGUIRE, Eighteenth Ward; LOUIS S. GOMEZ, Eleventh Ward, and PATRICK O.DUFFY, Twentieth-first Ward; as Secretaries. They were unanimously elected. The same gentleman offered the following resolution which was adopted:

Resolved, That the members of this Committee, residing in the respective Assembly districts, shall select one person from each district who together with the Chairman, Treasurer and Secretaries of the Committee, shall constitute an Executive Committee.

The following gentlemen were accordingly appointed: First, Thos. J. Ryan; Second, Jas. A. Oliver; Third, Geo. Cassidy; Fourth, Jas. Bagley; Fifth, Michael T. Cassidy; Sixth, Patrick O'Reilly; Seventh, John McNicoll; Eighth, Seth C. Douglass; Ninth, Pat. McCardle; Tenth, John Harman; Eleventh, Nelson J. Waterbury; Twelfth, John McGinkin; Thirteenth, Hugh McCorry; Fourteenth, Jacob McKeever; Fifteenth, John Kelly; Sixteenth, Peter Woods; Seventeenth, John Quinn; Eighteenth, Patrick H. McDonough; Nineteenth, Stanton McKiver; Twentieth, Hugh Mitchell; Twenty-first, Thos. F. Gilroy.

GILBERT DOTY, of the Eighteenth Ward, made a long and determined address against the Republican Party, and reviewed the history of Democracy, from its earliest workings to the present. In it he repeated all the hackneyed charges against the present Republican Party which he said, which he said was seeking to establish in this State Radical supremacy. He concluded with a solemn prediction of its downfall in the coming election, and a grand victory for Democracy.

WM. BOYD offered a preamble and resolutions, calling on all Democrats to vote for the Tammany candidates for City and county offices, and declining to make any nominations.

It was moved that they be adopted, when a delegate from the Twentieth Ward, JOHN CONNOY, arose and said: We did not come here to support Tammany candidates, and we are opposed to any such corrupt thieves. We don't care for OAKEY HALL, TWEED, or any of that clique who have robbed us right and left. You cannot put such an imposition on us. Here the Chairman arose and put the question. Then followed a scene baffling all description. One side yelled and gave hooray for HALL and Tammany, while others roared lustily for LEDWITH. In the midst of the hub-bub the Chairman declared the resolution adopted, although no vote had been taken, and in the same breath adjourned the meeting, which broke up in confusion.

MISCELLANEOUS LOCAL POLITICS

Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton Declines to Run for Congress.

The following letter from Mrs. ELIZABETH CADY STANTON to the gentlemen who nominated her for Congress in the Third Congressional District, was received last night:

Messrs. Edward C. Sheldwell, Hiram B. Crosier, John J. Merrill and others, Committee:

GENTLEMEN: When I consented to be a candidate for Congress in your district, I was not unmindful of section 5, article 1 of the Constitution, which provides that a Representative in Congress must be twenty-five years of age and seven years a citizen of the United States, and when elected must be an inhabitant of the State in which the person is chosen. Now, I am old enough and have been a citizen long enough to meet qualifications for a member of Congress, but I am not a citizen of this district, but I am not willing to leave my charming home on the blue hills of Jersey and become a denizen of your dirty town, as, according to the Constitution, I should be compelled to do to have election. But, as political parties have little regard to Constitutions now a days, you may not consider this a practical obstruction to my being your Representative, and hence I would further say that, since writing your that hasty note of acceptance, I ascertained that two of the candidates now in the field, Messrs. WHITING and WILSON, the Republican nominees in favor of Woman's suffrage, and I venture to assume that, on mature reflection, no liberal a gentleman as Gen. SLOCUM, the Democratic nominee, will take the same view of this important question. The great majority, I believe, are sincerely opposed, I have deemed it best, in the present sadly confused condition of politics in my native State, and especially in the City of New-York and Brooklyn, to withdraw from the canvass, that my name may not be an apple of discord among you. Yours respectfully,

ELIZABETH CADY STANTON.

False Registration—Arrest of a Tammany Official.

SAMUEL STRAUSS, a Tammany official, supposed to be a clerk in the County Clerk's office, was arrested, yesterday afternoon, on a charge of having registered in a fraudulent manner in the Fourteenth Ward. TIMOTHY BRENNAN, of the Sixth Ward, offered to become his bondsman, but a postponement was asked until this morning, to enable full inquiries about the surety. MORGAN JONES and Alderman CUDDY presented themselves as bondsmen for the accused, but were refused, on the ground that the latter had forfeited his right to be bailed by demanding an examination. Bondsmen offered were then made to obtain the prisoner's release by legal measures, but were firmly opposed by Commissioner DAYMOND and Assistant District-Attorney PUGSLEY. STRAUSS was finally sent to Ludlow-street Jail. He will probably be indicted today.

The Tweed Worse-Heaven.

Among resolutions adopted by the Republicans of the Seventeenth Assembly District, is the following in reference to the change of system in fixing water rates by the use of meters:

"That the provision in the Tammany TAX LEVY giving TWEED sole authority to place water-meters in all dwelling-houses (and which it is currently reported are being now manufactured) will prove, in its practical operations, one of the most oppressive schemes of plunder ever fastened upon this City, and we demand a change in the Governor who sanctioned a measure that will compel every tenant to pay water bills with a fearful uncertainty as to their amount."

A Bindwinchlest Repeater.

TERENCE QUINN, who was arrested, last week, on a charge of illegal registration, in the Sixteenth Ward, and who was subsequently released on giving bail, was arraigned, yesterday afternoon, by the United States authorities, on a charge of having enrolled his name on the registry list in a fraudulent manner. It was alleged that he had been convicted of a criminal offense in a State Court, and had been sent to State Prison for two years and six months, and he was therefore disfranchised as a voter. He was locked up in Ludlow-street jail.

Politicest Novelties.

A meeting of the Sixteenth Assembly District Union Republican Association was held last evening at No. 227 Third-avenue. Resolutions were adopted requesting President GRANT to prevent all Federal officials from removing from position all officers immediately under them who happened to differ from them on the best means to promote the interests of the great Republican Party.

The William M. Tweed Democratic Association of the Nineteenth Ward had a banner raising at the corner of Fifty-eighth-street and Third-avenue, last evening, and afterward held a meeting at the corner of Second-avenue and Fifty-eighth-street. Hon. FERNANDO WOOD made an address, winding up by informing them that he wanted to go to Congress again. Speeches were also made by Hon. JAMES DE RIVIERE, Major THOMPSON, Major P. S. SMITH, and others.

Republicans throughout the State will regret to learn that Hon. JOHN H. WHITE, who so ably represented the Eleventh District of this City in the Assembly last Winter, declines to run as a candidate for re-election, owing to professional business, which requires his attention at home. The Eleventh is an undoubted Republican district in a fair election, and it is to be hoped that the party will select a candidate who will represent it as able and honestly as Mr. WHITE has done.

Mr. ETHAN ALLEN has declined the nomination for member of Congress from the Fourth District. Because the honors was hearty unexpected, and that he hour since determined to accept no official position whatsoever.

The Republicans of the Fourth Assembly District and the Irish Republican soldiers and sailors of the same district met last evening at Botanic Hall, No. 69 East Broadway, to ratify the Republican nominations of Gen. STEWART L. WOODFORD. Mr. H. POWELL was elected President, and FRANCIS G. HOPKINS Secretary. A number of Vice-Presidents and Secretaries were elected. The meeting was very enthusiastic. Addresses were delivered by Dr. POWELL and Messrs. BELL, MCGINNIS, MURRAY and Capt. EUGENE O'SHEA, and strong resolutions were adopted.

The Republicans of Clifton and Stapleton, S. I., held a large meeting last night at Corporation Hotel, Stapleton. The nomination of Mr. C. C. NORWELL, for Congress, was indorsed unanimously amid much cheering.

A meeting of the "Tammany Hall Republicans" of the First Assembly District was held on Monday evening, at which "Hank" SMITH presided. During the proceedings a large amount of abuse was bestowed on those members who were opposed to Tammany's interference in Republican Conventions. The result was the expulsion of several bona fide Republicans like JOSEPH H. SOULEY.

Hon. GEORGE WM. CURTIS will address the people of Richmond County at the New-Brighton Republican Head-quarters, Dempsey's Hall, to-morrow evening.

The German Central Campaign Club met at the Steuben House, last evening. Arrangements are being made to hold German mass-meetings in the various Senatorial Districts, and a mass-meeting at the Cooper Institute is to be held on Friday, the 4th of next month. Chairman reports have been received from all parts in the interior, showing that even the German Democrats are getting tired of allying with an element which in every respect is arrayed against the interests of the German populace.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Yesterday, Oct. 25, was the most important day in real estate for months past. The sales of property, both in this City and Brooklyn, excited unusual attention, and the results achieved were of a very satisfactory nature. The prices obtained for the New-York property, located in the northern part of the island, was fully up to the expectation of the parties interested, and furnished a gratifying evidence of the real stability of the real estate market. The sale in Brooklyn of lots in the vicinity of Prospect Park in that city, was equally successful, and the auctioneers having charge of the transactions are to be congratulated for the success attending their efforts. The following is a brief report of the day's business, detailed particulars in regard to which will be found in the summary annexed:

At the Exchange, MULLER, WILKINS & CO., as previously announced, disposed of the property belonging to the Chittenden estate, located on Washington Heights. The attendance at the Exchange was very large, and the bidding throughout the sale decidedly spirited. All the lots offered were sold. The property was divided into seventeen villa plots, and fifty-four City lots, most of them fronting on Broadway. The plots were offered first, when an active competition ensued for their possession. In the plots vary, containing from thirteen to twenty-two City lots each. Those bringing the highest price were located overlooking the Hudson River, and fronting on the proposed new Boulevard. They are three in number, and brought $26,000 each, one being sold with the privilege. The others sold from $8,400 to $20,250 each. The purchasers of the different parcels were as follows: J. C. HAVEMEYER, five plots; W. H. UNDERDONK, three plots; JOHN SCALLOY, two plots; H. D. HOLPIN, two plots; H. D. TALLMADGE, two plots, and Henry BERRY, JAS. H. BUCKLEY and JAS. K. HILL each one plot. The seventeen plots sold for $307,600. They comprise in the aggregate about 205½ city-sized lots, each 25x100, and the average per lot is about $1,076. This price, when the distance from the northern end of Central Park is taken into consideration, it will be seen, is extremely good one, and larger than that obtained ever before for any property in this vicinity. Fifty-four City lots were next disposed of adjoining the above plots, and all fronting either on Broadway or on a new avenue about to be opened. They sold in the aggregate for $49,690, or at an almost exact average of $900 per lot. The principal buyers of lots were POTTER BROS., A. T. FAIRCHILD, M. H. LARNED and R. BERNHARD. The total receipts of the above sale amount to $357,290. No other transactions were effected at the Exchange, as the sale advertised by E. H. LUDLOW & Co., for yesterday, of property on West Forty-fourth-street, was adjourned to Nov. 9.

At Brooklyn, at the Commercial Exchange in that City, No. 389 Fulton-street, the attendance was also very large, and the interest manifested in the business of the day also decided in its character. The property disposed of consisted of 126 lots and gores fronting on Prospect Park and on Fifth, Sixth and Eighth avenues, and Degraw and Sackett streets, in Brooklyn, recently surveyed. The sale was by order of the Supreme Court, and was under the direction of Geo. J. MURPHY, Esq., referee. It was conducted by J. COLE as auctioneer. All the lots offered were disposed of, and they brought, in the aggregate, $174,000, an average of over $1,000 per lot. The principal purchasers were Mr. Sunning, James McMahon, M. McDonald, Mr. Ravenhold, J. J. Drake, Mr. Buhle, J. Boyle, Mr. Needham and W. B. Cooper. After this sale was concluded Mr. COLE sold four additional lots on Sackett-street, in the vicinity of the property sold as above, and belonging to private parties, at prices fully up to the day's average.

In addition to the attractive real estate programme in this City, yesterday, quite a large number of persons attended the sale of Messrs. A. J. BLEECKER, SON & CO., at Rutherford Park, N. J. The auction was held for the purpose of closing up the affairs of the Association, and the property was offered on easy terms. No report of the sale was received, however, in time for publication.

The principal transaction noticed for today is the sale by JOHNSON & MILLER, at the Exchange, in this City, of property located in Brooklyn. Full information in regard to which can be gained by a reference to our advertising columns. They are the improved property and lots offered are in all respects desirable, and can hardly fail to attract the attention of real estate investors, particularly after the successful results of yesterday.

STARLEY DAY, No. 111 Broadway, reports having disposed of the following property at private sale: House and lot No. 32 on the south side of West Twenty-third-street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, for $17,000; the house is 16.6 by 60, and the lot the same front by half the block in depth.

MONTCLAIR RAILWAY

(OF NEW-JERSEY.)

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS

INDORSED BY THE

N. Y. AND OSWEGO MIDLAND RAILROAD CO.

The only railroad now building from New-York Bay far toward the West in the GREAT MIDLAND ROAD.

The First Mortgage Bonds of THE MONTCLAIR RAILWAY COMPANY, (the New-Jersey section of the Midland,) are now offered to the amount only of

HALF A MILLION OF DOLLARS,

They are payable, principal and interest,

IN GOLD.

The rate of interest is 7 per cent, payable semi-annually, FREE FROM GOVERNMENT TAX.

These bonds are secured by a first mortgage to MARCUS T. WARD and ABRAM S. HEWITT, Trustees, on the most valuable and profitable portion of THE MIDLAND RAILROAD, the traffic of which will alone suffice to pay a fair profit on the cost of construction.

The Montclair Railway

having been issued perpetually to the New-York and Oswego Midland Railroad Company, becomes an integral part of that great work, and ITS BONDS ARE GUARANTEED by that Company.

NEARLY 200 MILES

in extent of this most important railroad are now completed and in successful operation, and THE MONTCLAIR RAILWAY, constituting the eastern terminal section—forty miles in length—is in process of rapid construction, and will be completed by December, 1871, simultaneously with the entire line, thereby establishing a new route from New-York westerly by way of Oswego, fifty miles shorter than by the Central, and by way of Buffalo seventy miles shorter than either the Central or the Erie Bonds.

We commend these bonds as a safe and valuable investment, because—

First—They are secured, by a first mortgage on THE MONTCLAIR RAILWAY and all its franchises, and EACH BOND BEARS THE INDORSEMENT of the

NEW-YORK AND OSWEGO MIDLAND RAILROAD COMPANY.

Second—The LOCAL TRAFFIC of this road must be large, as it connects New-York City with its most attractive suburbs, thereby trending a profitable business to the road.

Third—The franchises of the Company, embracing Midland railway and telegraph, to be built, and an INDEPENDENT FERRY across Hudson River, all of which are included in the mortgage, confer a value on these bonds in addition to that afforded by the main line.

Fourth—The entire capital of both Companies, distributed at the present time, is nearly $6,000,000 PAID IN, all of which has been faithfully devoted to the constructional construction of the road, is liable for the payment of these bonds.

Fifth—The large rate of interest.

PAYABLE IN GOLD COIN,

affords to holders of Government Bonds a great advantage in change their investment. For instance:

A Government Bond of $1,000 costs (say) $1,100
Yielding an income of 60
$1,100 invested in Montclair Railway Bonds, at par, yields an income of 77
Difference, $17, or 2½ per cent.

These bonds are issued in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, respectively. For sale by

WEST POINT.

The Case of the Colored Cadet—His Own Story—The Case Closed by the Judge Advocate-General—Sentence Decided But Not Published.

From Our Special Correspondent.

WEST POINT, Oct. 25, 1870.

The General Court-martial recommenced its business at 11 o'clock this morning. At 12 the case of the colored cadet, J. W. SMITH, was called. Col. PARSONS, his counsel, then arose, and read the following written defense:

MAY IT PLEASE THE COURT: I will try to close in as few words as possible, and in a plain, straightforward manner, my view of the case in issue before you; and, in doing so, I will not extenuate my own faults nor say anything in malice against others. Under the first charge against me, viz.: conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline, it is specified that I did create a disturbance in camp, and did assault Cadet J. W. WILSON, of this Academy, with my dipper and fists. I am prepared to admit the plain facts thus alleged, and I suppose that they constitute an offense under the ninety-ninth article of war. But I wish to know the Court, if there ever was a fighter or more trifling circumstance set up for the judgment of a General Court-martial? The facts are, that on the 20th of August I was on guard, and was sent from the guard tent, which is on the extreme western flank of the cadet encampment, to the water tank, which is nearly in the north-eastern angle, for a pail of water. When I went away I had in mind that excited state the standing order of the guard, which is in brief, and which says that a member of the guard cannot be absent from the guard tent for more than ten minutes. Cadet Corporal WALKER thinks this does not include a case of duty. Since the present, I observe it does; but I was a new cadet, anxious to do right, and having no other purpose than to go and return as soon as possible. When I reached the tank, Cadets WILSON and CHARAMIN were there. The situation may be briefly shown thus: The tank was situated close to Post No. 3, was octagonal in shape; over it was stretched a tent-fly, the ridge pole of which ran nearly north and south; on the south side was Post No. 3, and nearly up to this tank was one pole. On the opposite south side was the other pole, somewhat removed from the tank, so as to give room for a small platform; on the east and west sides the tent-fly was fastened down, so as to afford a limited shelter room. On the east side was the hog-water faucet, at which I one stood while drawing water, he would be in close proximity to another approaching the same place, and I would be in close proximity to another, or would have to pass around the tank, over Post No. 2, which was contrary to orders, or to stoop, almost crawl out under the tent-fly. When I came up to the tank, it is true, I found Cadets CHARAMIN and WILSON there. The former was drinking, WILSON was next in turn. Some remark was made as I came up. It since appears in evidence that it was a remark made by Mr. WILSON to Mr. CHARAMIN, the latter replied "hurry up." I just heard it, and made a reply also to "hurry up, as I want to get water for the guard." I then placed my bucket down and shoved it toward the usual place; I did it somewhat roughly and carelessly, what was thought by the witnesses Mr. WILSON, I struck him on the shoulder; CHARAMIN says it hit him on the hand. I had no idea that it hit him at all, for the object was not to assault him, but to put the bucket in position. Upon this point, Mr. WILSON, whether consciously or not, repelled it so that it fell back and was tipped over. I could not see this plainly, but felt that he was trying to kick my bucket away. I then had in my mind the idea of an explanation, and as would have passed between friends, would have made it all clear between us; for I do not think that either had an idea of picking a quarrel upon nothing. Those nearer were, I think, from all the testimony of several witnesses for the prosecution, who say they knew one by sight, WILSON and myself, knew each other by sight, and I believe I may add, knew it was intended each other by mutual explanation. We had only to interpret each act or the part of the other as an offensive one. The Court knows that it is not my habit to be a fighter. I have been, if I appear this, I sought a quarrel with him, it is a mistake. A few words passed between us; I cannot recollect them. I do not think that any of us who was under such excitement could recollect them in his mind. We came to a scuffle, back as Mr. ARDREW outside the tent, describes. I thought, and I still think, that he gave me the first blow. If any of the Court remember the position, it will be that I had to see which side the sun was. During the scuffle, no severe blow was given by either party, except in this, that I struck Mr. WILSON with the bottom of the dipper, and he returned over the top of the tent. Under ordinary circumstances the blow would have been of more than the slightest consequence. But the dipper of the tightest wood-cut that was at hand, and I, it broke, as the first blow, and the jagged edge cut Mr. WILSON over the temple, drawing blood. The wound was as slight in its consequences as it was unpremeditated in its infliction. When I saw that he was bleeding, I felt that at once, the fight was over. I checked, I did not do it for the purpose of forcing to keep a place at the tank, of which I thought I was being deprived by force. The testimony shows that we were not separated by force, but that I stopped of my own accord when we saw that it was becoming serious. I suppose that little matter, which some of you will know, is likely to be of frequent occurrence between young persons, would not have been heard of, made, and I believe I think, Cadet LEWIS CHARAMIN, officer in charge, came up and ordered me in confinement. That was the offense. It was a disturbance, and possibly a disturbance of the peace, but it was not planned by one of us, as in the case with Mr. SMITH in the Cadet Corps. So unexpected was it, that I would be willing to submit it to Mr. WILSON to say candidly, today, if he thought I provoked it, or if he believed that it was any more than a little misunderstanding. For that I have been kept in arrest as follows: confined to my tent, or quarters in barracks, from the 20th of August until Sept. 12, and from the latter date to the present time to the limits of the barracks and gymnasium.

The second charge is a more serious one, and such that if I was guilty of it I would not appear before this Court for defense. But I am not. [After then review the case in the matter, and the question of mistake of date in the several records.] I might rest my case here, but I am aware that a little matter of the discrepancy of dates a sinister suspicion might lurk in the minds of some in regard to the sincerity of my defense. It may be thought that the mistake of dates of which I tried to take advantage of, I might explain that, but I am here seeking an honorable acquittal, not on technicalities, but on the unimpeachable strength of a simple cause that justice shall be done me and the cadet body. I say in conclusion as if I was under oath, that I had no idea of the discrepancy of dates until it was brought out on this trial; that I made that denial in perfect good faith, as the records before you show, and in my conscience would bear witness to it all its workings could be revealed. If you ask why I should not remember such a simple sentence as being spoken to on drill, and making it did make it a point of honor that I was spoken to many times on drill, and often harshly, as the word is, when a new cadet is awkward at first; such a circumstance was not so simple as to be forgotten, especially in my memory, unless coupled with some other circumstance. Now, the 15th of August was a day peculiarly different from the previous day; it was the first of the skirmish drills. A new drill has a great interest for a new cadet. I was thinking of it. The next day, the 16th (night 15th last.) I heard three reports for the same drill, I supposed—and out against me. I thought that pretty hard for one drill. I read them on the company bulletin board. The Adjutant, I believe, denies, though I did not remember it; the second, for great carelessness and inattention, I thought undeserved, but knew the reporting officer's judgment against my solemn assurance. May it please the Court, to grant me the benefit of the doubt, that I thought over in my mind and came to the conclusion that it was wrong, and I so stated. It never came into my mind, from that time until last Saturday, that I was under any other charge, or that so plainly noted, was intended. Those who do me the great injustice to suspect other wise array their own obstinate judgment against my solemn assurance. May it please the Court, to grant me the benefit of the doubt, and assistance of the justification of one who has been deemed over so guilty, when that justification was established by incontestable proof. It is apparent that the two months an unjust suspicion of intention of a carelessness not mine, has rested upon me. A misunderstanding so simple in its conception, and so prodigious in its abrupt bringing forth, has rarely, if ever, been witnessed between young men, mainly sincere, and one inferior, undeniably innocent. While the officers over me have for two months labored honestly under the conviction of my guilt, I, too, have had the thought, knowing my own intent." [He then pathetically alludes to the great burdens that this reproach caused him to bear, the Commandant's kindness and firmness, and concludes] "I willingly rest my case on the testimony developed." "When I heard the Commandant speak of the military crime of falsehood, in connection with my previous explanation, and of the Court, I felt that I was in earnest and I known that a mistake of dates had been made, and that the awful secret was locked up in the desk of the amanuensis, in the next room. I should have to make inquiry in the morning of Mr. ARDREW UPDIKE, citizen to whom I trust the finding of this Court will entitle me, and to save myself all this oppression and anxiety, by stating what that mistake was, and how it might fall on him in this if you feel satisfied of my innocence in the matter which affects my honor, you will render a finding of "not guilty" and "honorable acquittal." The spirit dictates of the institution demanded it no less than myself.

The Judge Advocate closed the case with a lengthy and caustic review of the line of defense. He was astounded at it. It was an effort to escape upon a quibble of dates. The accused well knew that he was guilty of such an offense within two days of the disputed date. When he assaulted Cadet WILSON he used a low, profane, ungentlemanly epithet. The blow was a vengeful one. If WILSON had retaliated, and in the scuffle killed SMITH, a civil Court would not hold him for murder. The crime was a most grave one in military law, nearly like those justifying punishment of death.

The Court then adjourned. The case is now closed, and the sentence decided, but will not be published until approved by the War Department. A large crowd was in attendance.

Justice Dowling's Suggestions on the Social Evil.

FANNY PHIPPANY was sentenced to three months' imprisonment in the Penitentiary, and to pay a fine of $15, by Justice DOWLING, at the Court of Special Sessions, yesterday, for keeping a disorderly house in Fifteenth-street. In imposing sentence the Justice remarked that, in his opinion, "it would be a salutary piece of legislative reform, in connection with houses of prostitution, if such places were kept under regular license, as they are in St. Louis, Paris and other cities. He believed that instead of increasing, it would tend to diminish the spread of the social evil. However repugnant to the moral sections of some people such an act of law might be, he was sure the next Legislature would adopt some such measure to meet an evil which, while human nature was constituted as it is, it would be impossible to suppress, but might be possible to lessen."

Episcopal Provincial Council.

The first Provincial Council of the Episcopal Church in this country is to assemble in St. John's Chapel, Varick-street, in this City, this morning. The session is looked forward to by the Episcopalians throughout the country with much interest. The Council will be composed of the Bishops and representative clergy and laymen of the five dioceses into which the State of New-York is divided. Up to about thirty-five years ago one Bishop had supervision of all the Episcopalians in the State, which formed but one diocese. But the Church has so greatly increased that division and subdivision of the territory has been found necessary, till now there are in the State five dioceses, presided over by five Bishops, viz.: Bishop POTTER, of the Diocese of New-York; Bishop COXE, of the Diocese of Western New-York; Bishop HUNTINGTON, of the Diocese of Central New-York; Bishop LITTLEJOHN, of the Diocese of Long Island; and Bishop DOANE, of the Diocese of Albany. To promote unity of action and take care of common interests, such a council has been found necessary, and at the last meeting of the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church authority was granted for continuous dioceses to associate themselves in a provincial council. The system which is about thus to begin will doubtless, in time, be adopted in other parts of our extended country.

A Caution to Burglars—A Tammany Thief Shot Dead with a Trap-Gun.

Yesterday morning the lifeless remains of GEORGE TWADDLE, of No. 22 East Twenty-third-street, a well-known local politician of the Tammany stripe, were found lying in the yard in rear of the shop of JOSEPH D'AUGUSTINO, a lock-smith and gun-smith, at No. 201 East Twenty-third-street. He had been shot through the head and killed with the musket placed in position within, with the trigger attached with a spring and a string to the stricker in such a way that when the deceased attempted to open the blind the weapon was discharged. Burglars had broken in, and D'AUGUSTINO had arranged this contrivance with a view to protect his property. The associates of the burglar were greatly excited when they heard of his death, and were so loud in their threats that the Police locked D'AUGUSTINO up in order to protect him from the anger of those which had gathered and followed him to the Station-house. There was ample evidence in the position of the body and its surroundings that TWADDLE was attempting a burglary when shot, and that he had accomplices. The body was taken to the Morgue.

Coroner FLYNN visited the Morgue during the afternoon and ordered a post-mortem examination to be made, after which he impaneled a jury and handed the body over to the relatives. An inquest will be held in a day or two.

The trains both ways were delayed some time, causing much inconvenience to the passengers. Fortunately, the train was going at the time at a little over 20 miles an hour, and if it had been in the opposite direction it would have gone over the embankment, and a fearful loss of life and limb would have been the result.
